Retail Marketing Stretches Ag Horizons

LOU ANN GOOD

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — To keep educators abreast of the changing face of agriculture, an Ag Horizon conference annually examines facets connected with agriculture.

On Tuesday at Grantville, the Ag Horizons 2000 Conference examined e-commerce, entertainment farming, niche and direct marketing, and business plan development.

E-Commerce

Terry Kile, who specializes in multimedia and web solutions for business marketing, explained how the web is becoming a powerful tool in agriculture. From offering business research to marketing opportunities, the web is changing agriculture.

Web usage continues to grow, causing a fundamental shift in economic power. This enables the lone farmer to compete with large corporations and offers a worldwide perspective. The

Stress, Sweat, Sweet Success At Shippensburg

SHIPPENSBURG (Cumberland Co.) — With the advent of sweet corn and tomatoes comes another season... fair season. This past week the college town of Shippensburg held its fair, a tradition since in 1958.

Besides concerts and crafts, the fair features a stockmans contest, tractor pull, fitting and showing, 4-H and FFA judging, and barnyard Olympics contests.

Market and breeding steer, lamb, swine, and goat judging was also a part of the fair. In the dairy division, colored breeds and Holsteins had their time in the ring, along with the Jersey cattle as the fair hosted the district Jersey show.

A horse show and horse pull contest added an equine element to the activities. For a report, turn to the photo essay on pages A24-25.

Groff Field Day Emphasizes Environmentally Friendly Farming

ANDY ANDREWS

HOLTWOOD (Lancaster Co.) — What started as a simple trip to speak at a conservation meeting last March in California ended as an exchange trip, of sorts, for two farmers deeply involved in environmentally sound farming practices.

The farmer making the trip? Steve Groff, of Cedar Meadow Farm in Holtwood. The farm visited? The one operated by Richard Rominger, U.S. deputy secretary of agriculture.

Both spoke Wednesday afternoon at Groff's 7th Annual Farm Field Day hosted by the Lancaster Chamber of Commerce and Industry, Lancaster Conservation District, and the Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture at Groff's Cedar Meadow Farm near Holtwood.

Rominger's family, including sons Rick, Charlie, and Bruce, farms about 3,000 acres in the Sacramento Valley. They grow process tomatoes, wheat, corn, and other crops.

In March, Steve Groff visited Rominger's farm to see environmentally farming practices on Rominger's 3,000 acres near Winters, Calif. Rominger considers 3,000 acres "average" size, he said, for a farm in the state.

Rominger, who headed the California Department of Food and Agriculture from 1977-1982, spoke about some initiatives outlined in the proposed 2002 Farm Bill — some that could directly benefit the wallet of farmers practicing conservation practices.

There were a total of 96 animals exhibited by 47 4-H dairy club members.

Judges were Scott Cooper, colored breeds, from Delta and Gary Derr, New Windsor, Md., Holsteins.

	CATTLE	CALVES
THIS WEEK	1879	1704
LAST WEEK	1931	1864
LAST YEAR	1755	1836

CATTLE: Compared to last week's closing prices, slaughter steers and heifers closed .50-1.00 lower. The market refuses to find any stability and luckily local finished cattle supplies have been light, or else prices could slump even lower. Dressed beef values continue to hold around the 113.00 level with good movement, but Western feeders have gotten into bind by putting off the selling of their showlists for the past several weeks. Packers now have the leverage, which could lengthen this market slump. Feedlots refused lower bids again this week with only a few sales reported in Nebraska by Friday morning from 65.00-65.50 live and mostly 104.00 dressed. Some cash corn bids are as low as 1.40 per bushel in the Midwest, but the gloomy fat cattle market has finally brought on the first sign of weakness in Western feeder cattle prices.

Local Holstein steers managed to trade steady this week with good demand. Slaughter cows sold 1.00 higher, but slaughter bulls continue to back off of their highs and closed 1.00-1.50 lower. Supply included 40 pct slaughter steers, 5 pct slaughter heifers, 43 pct slaughter cows, 5 pct slaughter bulls, with the balance mostly feeders.

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
July 26, 2000
Report Supplied By USDA

Daily National Grain Market Summary

Grain and soybean bids were mostly lower for the day with some strength showing up. Continued good crop condition and slow export sales offered weakness to bids. Wheat mixed, 1 cent higher to 1 cent lower. Corn 2 to 3 cents lower. Sorghum 4 cents lower. Soybeans mostly 1 to 6 cents lower.

Beneficial rains continue to fall in the Midwest and Corn Belt areas. A potential record corn crop is expected. Wheat bids received light support due to ideas the market has been oversold.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

JULY 31-AUGUST 6, 2000

LAMMAS DAY, AUGUST 1.

HANDFASTING

August 1 marks the ancient Scottish tradition of handfast marriages, a custom something like a trial marriage It was customary in Denmark, as well Sir Walter Scott wrote of it, "Knowest thou not that rite, holy man? then I will tell thee We bordermen take our wives for a year and a day, that space gone by, each may choose another mate, or, at their pleasure, [they] may call the priest to marry them for life and this we call handfasting " Some called it handfastening By some definitions, it took on more the demeaner of a marriage of convenience, such as when a man lost his wife to illness and then handfasted with a nurse or servant who had been in the household

A bad oyster, like a bad marriage, is not known until it is too late.

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Scratch children's names on pumpkins (still on the vine) now.

BLUEBERRY BLINTZES

3/4 cup sifted flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
3 eggs
1-1/2 cups milk
FILLING.
1-1/2 cups blueberries
3 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
sweetened sour cream (optional)

Mix batter and let stand for 1 hour (or chill for longer periods), then fry in 2 tablespoons butter, as for crepes

Mix filling, spread over cooked crepes, and roll them up, placing the rolled crepes into a shallow baking pan Bake at 425°F for about 20 minutes Serve warm, with sour cream over them, if desired

Makes 4 servings

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

None in August should over the land, / In December none over the sea.

Observe on what day in August the first heavy fog occurs, and expect a hard frost on the same day in October.

A fog in August indicates a severe winter and plenty of snow.

Taste Of Agriculture

The state, county, and local fair season is under way. What a great time of fun for farmers and city cousins alike. Farmers go to the fair to see their neighbors and compare the exhibits, both animal and vegetable, with what they have at home. The farm equipment and service dealers play a large part of what's to see at each local fair, too.

We think the 132 fairs listed in Pennsylvania in addition to all those listed in Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Delaware, Virginia, and West Virginia, provide a good opportunity for the entire urban population to get a taste of agriculture under show conditions. Agriculture is dressed up to go to the fair, and this provides the opportunity to bridge the gap between farm and city.

We know and lament the fact that some local farm fairs have deemphasized the farm part of the exhibits in favor of the midway and stadium entertainment. Nevertheless, farmers should support whatever part of your local fair still caters to agriculture exhibits. And we should work to restore more farm contact at the fairs.

At this time of year, plan to go the fair. You will have a good time with friends. And you will help provide a window into agriculture for all the urbanites in your local community.

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Consider Expanding Forage Production

Many Pennsylvania livestock producers may find it to their advantage to produce additional forages to feed to livestock.

As livestock producers consider their alternatives for forages to plant, August seeding of several crops could be especially beneficial.

Following are some suggestions from Dr. Marvin Hall, Penn State extension forage specialist.

Forage Brassica (rape or turnips) and small grains (wheat, barley, rye, or triticale) offer some opportunities for the production of late fall and early winter pasturing. Interested farmers who can take advantage of grazing should contact their county Penn State Cooperative Extension office and obtain a copy of Agronomy Facts 33, "Use of Brassica Crops to Extend the Growing Season," and Agronomy Facts 41, "Strategies for Extending the Grazing Season." These fact sheets contain a lot of information related to growth characteristics of these plants, method of establishment, fertility, and grazing management.

To Consider Small Grains For Grazing

During last year's drought, many livestock and dairy farmers found that fall-seeded oats also make an excellent pasture for late fall grazing.

Robert Anderson, Lancaster County extension agronomy agent, reports that oats planted in mid to late September will grow until almost Christmas most years in Lancaster County. During this time, the crop will often reach a height of 14 to 16 inches. Rye, wheat, and barley may also be used in this manner.

However, their growth is less vigorous in the fall and total production for fall grazing is less. This is because these crops do not tiller until the following growing season. All of these make an excellent winter cover crop if the forage is not needed. In addition to reducing erosion during the winter, they will add organic matter to the soil.

To Consider Small Grains For Silage

According to Dr. Marvin Hall, Penn State extension forage specialist, small grains (oats, rye, and wheat) should be planted as soon as possible and harvested for silage in the milk to soft dough stage.

Generally, the milk stage is less desirable than the early dough stage because it is less palatable and studies indicate that animal performance is reduced. Moisture levels should be between 60 to 70 percent for best ensiling of small grains.

Small grain silage below 60 percent is difficult to pack and excessive heating and nutrient loss may occur. In addition, make sure the theoretical length of cut is less than ⅛ of an inch long. Minimizing length of cut helps prevent heating and maintains forage quality of small grain silage.

In Pennsylvania, a study was conducted at Landisville comparing several crops planted on Aug. 5 and then harvested for silage. Corn was harvested on Oct. 5 and yielded 1.5 tons per acre with 61.2 percent TDN. Oats was harvested in the soft dough stage and yielded 2.1 tons per acre with 75.8 percent TDN. Rye was harvested in the soft dough stage and yielded 2.1 tons per acre with 68.4 percent TDN.

STRONG ENOUGH?

Background Scripture:
Ephesians 6:10-24.
Devotional Reading:
John 14:15-27.

The world in which we live is a dangerous place. Daily, it is filled with temptations, snares, and trials. Even in one day's time, how often we find our commitment to Christ being put to some kind of test?

In a book I use for my daily devotions there is a prayer, the Mozarabic Sacramentary, "Grant us, O Lord, to pass this day in gladness and peace, without stumbling and without stain, that, reaching the eventide victorious over all temptation, we may praise you, the eternal God, who dost govern all things and art blessed evermore; through Jesus Christ, thy Son, our Lord. Amen."

When I first came across this prayer, I thought it a bit overdramatic or pessimistic. It seemed that my normal days were not burdened with "stumbling" and "stain" — at least not on a daily basis. Over the years, however, I have become more realistic about the subtle pitfalls that lie in wait for us each day. When I go to bed, if I truly examine my day in the light of Christ's presence, I find that almost always I have done what I ought not to have done and not done what I should have done.

Living The Love

Sin is not just a matter of not living up to a set of rules, but of failing to live the love of Christ in every situation. I may keep all the major rules, but fail to truly follow Jesus in the myriad of everyday choices and challenges: the time I give to others, the ways in which I respond to them, my willingness to give my attention to those who want it, the way I drive my car, my attitude when I'm shopping — well, you get the idea.

Every day of my life — and yours — is chock-full of challenges to my Christian discipleship.

Life requires an enormous amount of spiritual strength. Ephesians recognizes that need: "...that you may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. For we are not contending against flesh and blood, but against the principalities, against the powers, against the world rulers of this present darkness, against the spiritual hosts of wickedness in the heavenly places" (6:11b,12). This evil is of cosmic proportions, a potent force in every life and, if we despair our lack of sufficient spiritual strength, we are half right.

But we do not have to face it "by ourselves." God will give us the power to withstand these dangers — if we will permit him to do so. "Put on the whole armor of God, that you may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil." As fearsomely impressive as are the forces of evil that confront us, the power God offers us is even more impressive. "Therefore take the whole armor of God, that you may be able to withstand in the evil day..." (6:13).

God offers us sufficient strength but we must seek and accept it — as Ephesians says, "...take the whole armor of God" (italics mine).

The Whole Armor

The author makes an analogy between the strength God offers us and the armor worn by soldiers in those days. What it means is that, when we are confronted by the challenge of evil, we must not fail to hold on to truth, righteousness, the gospel of peace, faith, salvation, the word of God, prayers and supplications.

Evil gains the advantage over us whenever, for the sake of short-term relief, we are willing to let go of any of these — compromising the truth and adulterating righteousness, temporarily suspending the gospel of peace and replacing it with belligerence, and allowing our faith to waver and make ourselves vulnerable to "the darts of the evil one."

I have sometimes found that, when under siege, I tend to forget to rely on my God-given armor. I become so fearful that I allow my faith to waiver, being so preoccupied by the threats that I fail to resort to my best resource. So when the going is the hardest, that is the very time we need to make time to "Pray at all times in the Spirit, with all prayer and supplication. To that end keep alert with all perseverance, making supplication for all the saints..." (6:18).

No, we do not have on our own enough strength to meet the threat of evil, but, if we open ourselves in prayer to God in Christ, we enable him to give us all the strength we will need. His answer to our prayer may not be an escape route from the danger, but the strength to meet and withstand it.

Dairy Farmers Invited To Dairy Checkoff Luncheon

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Dairy promotion checkoff is working. Studies show disappearance of milk has increased and to find out just how much, mark your calendar for the annual dairy farmer information session and luncheon hosted by the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program. The free luncheon will be at noon, Thursday, Aug. 17, in conjunction with Ag Progress Days in State College, Pa.

"It is important our dairy farmers attend this session and take pride in their checkoff program," says Debra Summerall, spokesperson for PDPP. "The farmer-owned promotion program made several positive changes in 1999 — changes that reinforced milk's health benefits and cheese's versatility. The idea worked, and our farmers will be excited to see the increases we will share."

In addition, farmers are urged to stop by a display booth hosted by Pennsylvania's dairy promotion programs including PDPP, the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Mid East and the American Dairy Association/Dairy Council Middle Atlantic in Livestock Tent #1. Pennsylvania-specific promotional activities will be showcased, a daily drawing will be held for a got milk?® prize package and current dairy farmer funded advertisements will be featured.

You'll Have Nothing But TLC For Our TLB

Dynamic! Powerful! Versatile! These are just a few of the affectionate words used to describe our rugged and agile 4WD, L35 tractor/loader/backhoe (35 HP). With it's compact design and increased maneuverability, the new generation GST hydraulic shifted-transmission enhances precision and the popular Kubota E-TVCS diesel engine packs a lot of power but little noise.

In tight or large spaces – on the ranch, farm or construction site – you'll love the powerful and versatile performance of the L35 T/L/B.

downside is that local farmers must compete pricewise with those in other countries.

An example of this was mentioned by Stephen Quigley, a managing partner in Merrymead Farm Inc., a dairy farm and farm market in Lansdale.

Entertainment Farming

As a farmer, Quigley is frustrated by low commodity prices and stifling government regulations. At the same time, to remain profitable, Quigley is forced to make astute business decisions. That often means it is cheaper for him to buy elsewhere than raise it himself or buy from a neighboring farmer.

Quigley found he could have Canadian pumpkins delivered to his farm cheaper than raising them or than buying them from other growers in the state.

While this news sounds discouraging to farmers, Quigley, Janet Finney, Roy Brubaker, and Romaine Erb shared how they are finding ways to remain profitable in the changing market.

Both Quigley and Finney cater to entertainment farming.

"People don't want to pay for food, but they'll pay big bucks for entertainment," Quigley said.

Realizing this, Quigley has helped steer Merrymead Farm into a place where families come to spend money. The drawing card is that Merrymead is the closest working farm to Philadelphia. Eighteen family members and additional seasonal help are employed on the family farm that has a 100-cow herd and 400 acres.

Visitors are charged $4.50 each to visit the farm.

"They pay to go to a museum. Why shouldn't they pay to see our farm?" Quigley asked in regards to the attraction of animals and open space.

People are willing to pay. Merrymead has been so successful that traffic is sometimes backed up five miles in either direction waiting to get into the farm on a busy day.

Merrymead, open seven days a week from 6:30 a.m. to 10 p.m., makes 50 flavors of ice cream, operate their own bakery, and are constantly trying new activities.

The store's biggest retail growth has been in flowers. But complicating the growth is the strict zoning laws enforced by his county.

"We are only allowed to sell what we can dig with hand shovel. Zoning is horrendous," Quigley said.

"Business is big, but the future doesn't look good," Quigley said of the battle with zoning laws that stifle their growth and are often times ridiculous.

The farm is not allowed to erect a permanent building but is allowed to continue a bakery business within three sheds on the property. This inconvenience requires additional labor in walking back and forth between sheds and in transporting baked goods from one place to another. Eight rooms of the farmhouse are used for office space. The barns and six trailers are used for storage.

Zoning will not allow permanent signs, so a sign is erected on a wagon and moved periodically.

Merrymead is surrounded by development. But, Quigley said, milk sales remained flat in the last five years despite the population increase.

"The neighbors go to the supermarket for milk. They don't want to another stop for milk," he said. They do come for ice cream. In the summer, the store employs 75 students who work 12 at a time dipping ice cream.

Quigley is the first to say that the family could not survive by relying strictly on agricultural pursuits. Some of their attractions include having the world's largest pig, offering unique games of chance such as the harvest slinger — which pays better than a whole dairy herd for a year — 13 hayride wagons, Johnny Appleseed reenactment, and many seasonal events.

Janet Finney doesn't live in Philadelphia, but her family has also managed to carve a successful business with entertainment farming concepts in Crawford County. The entertainment started by accident with a few pumpkins in 1958. The family now raises 30 acres of pumpkins and five acres of Indian corn on their 100-acre property. They rent an additional 50 acres. A former dairy farm, it is now a vegetable farm with no irrigation system. They grow everything they sell except apples and cider at the roadside stand.

Seasonal pumpkin sales are the Finneys' forte. Finney turns pumpkins into the big, bad wolf and the three little pigs, Wizard of Oz characters, and other storybook personalities.

The Finneys do not charge for entrance to their farm, but they sell Pumpkinville treats such as hot dog and vampire specials and sometimes offer rides on their registered Belgiums.

Finney said the entertainment aspect of Finney's Pumpkinville draws customers. Even if they do not buy anything that day, they usually become repeat customers of the farm market, making it worth the no admission policy.

Niche Marketing

Niche marketing has provided a nice income for the Roy Brubaker family. Since 1992, Brubaker has been operating Village Acres, a 15-acre certified organic vegetable and small fruits farm in Juniata County. A former missionary, Brubaker said organic farming was his first stab at farming. On his farm, top soil was shallow, not well-drained, and polluted with stones, which continues to be an ongoing hassle.

Some of the marginal land is used for raspberries, blueberries, and perennials since the soil doesn't require tilling for these crops.

Brubaker said that being part of the Tuscarora Organic Growers has enabled him sales and opportunities that wouldn't be possible operating alone. About 65 of the co-op sales are in the Washington D.C. area to restaurants and retailers.

During January and February, co-op members decide what each member will grow, negotiate changes, additions, and diversity.

The Brubakers also operate a community-supported agriculture program in the State College area. Brubaker's wife Liz likes working with the 40-50 members who participate in the community support agriculture program.

The farm is also used to raise seed garlic called Juniata Stinking Rose, which sells for $8 a pound, and Brubaker's daughter grows 80 varieties of flowers to sell to florists and retail.

Although 25 percent of the profits go to the co-op, Brubaker said the price he receives is still better than he could do selling locally on his own.

Direct Marketing

Direct marketing has provided the income of Romaine Erb, her husband Jim, and two children on their Brook Lawn Farm Market, Neffsville.

The market is open from April through October. Strawberries, sugar peas, sweet corn, tree fruit, pumpkins, fall ornamental crops are sold retail in addition to pick-your-own produce. Christmas trees, lawn furniture, and mulch are also marketed at the stand.

Flowers and a herb garden attract a growing number of customers, but the Erbs are prevented by zoning to expand that aspect of business the way they'd like.

Erb said that they tend to comply with local zoning rather than fight for exemption. Because they are not allowed to build a greenhouse, they have had to work with a labor-intensive method of rolling and unrolling plastic. Plastic is also used to start corn, which is mostly handpicked.

Attractive displays and placement of items are important marketing tools according to Erb. She likes to place in-season produce at the rear of the store to encourage customers to pick up other items as they walk through the store.

She said that it is amazing the difference display can make in sales. She placed patty pan squash in a little wooden wheelbarrow. The attractive display grabs customers' attention, and they buy the squash.

Other Topics

A panel discussion by the speakers enabled the audience to ask questions. Many seemed concern about the liability of on-site sales.

"A successful business needs a good banker, a good accountant, and a good insurance man," Quigley said. Insurance men check out potential dangers and suggest changes before an accident happens. In all the years of operation, Merrymead had only one claim for injury.

James Beirlein, Penn State ag economist, conducted a workshop on developing a business plan.

Dr. Lou Moore, Penn State ag economist, gave an overview of agriculture and said that U.S. farmers have outproduced population growth. Although the number of farms continue to decline, production is up.

Farmers share of the food dollar has declined from 48 percent in 1913 to 21 percent. The percent of income the average American spends on food is 10 percent and declining. Other countries spend about 50 percent of their income on food.

The annual conference, sponsored by Pennsylvania Council of Cooperatives and Penn State's Cooperative Business Education and Research Program, is designed for educators and those interested in the future of agriculture. This year's 11th annual conference was conducted at Holiday Inn, Grantville Tuesday.

'Progressive' Field Meeting Aug. 19

MILTON (Northumberland Co.) — Saturday, Aug. 19 will be the date of a "progressive" field meeting with travel to four different farms throughout the morning!

This meeting is being sponsored by the Pocono-Northeast and Headwaters RC&Ds with cooperation from NRCS, DEP, and Penn State Extension.

The purpose of the meeting will be to look at different fencing systems that have been implemented in the area with support from a grant received by the RC&Ds. The grant promotes managed pasture systems as a way to reduce agricultural pollution.

All of the farms are in the watershed area of the Chillisquaque creek, which is classified as impaired by DEP. Focus is on farms that are converting cropland into pasture.

The meeting roster:

• 9 a.m. at the Jeff Foust farm, Mexico Road. Fencing was completed last year to establish a rotational grazing system for dairy heifers. Exterior fence is five-wire high tensile.

From Rt. 254 west of Washingtonville take Mexico Road which runs back of the Montour DeLong fairgrounds. After passing the stone piles at the quarry, it is the first farm on the right.

From Rt. 642 just east of Milton after crossing over Rt. 147, go about a mile and take Mexico Road to the left. Follow Mexico Road, cross under I-80, and go 3.5 more miles. Look for the meeting sign.

• 10 a.m., Bill Vegh farm, 189 Hillside Road. Fencing was expanded this year and a water transfer system is being added to get water out to all paddocks. Exterior fencing is six-wire high tensile. Rotational grazing is used for the dairy herd.

From Rt. 254 a mile east of Washingtonville, turn on Steffen Road. After about a mile, turn left onto Hillside Road at the intersection. It is the first farm on the left.

• 11 a.m., High Ridge Farm, PPL Road. Fencing was installed this spring. Exterior fence is seven-wire high tensile. Interior alleyway and pond fencing is two-wire high tensile. Fields are currently being renovated from an expired CRP contract.

The farm is located a half mile south of Exchange. From Rt. 44, turn onto PPL Road at the intersection in Exchange. After about a half mile, at the top of the hill, turn left on the lane which runs beside the black high tensile fence. Park beside the white storage building.

• 12 p.m., Warrior Run Acres, Lamar Eby, Warrior Run Boulevard. Fencing and watering system were completed last year to manage sheep and goats. Exterior fence is high-tensile woven wire.

From Rt. 54 one mile west of Turbotville, turn north on Warrior Run Boulevard. It is the third house on the right.

Lunch will be at the Eby's immediately following the pasture tour.

Please call Ray Hosler at the NRCS office at (570) 784-1062 ext. 101 to let him know that you will be attending the field day. Call no later than Tuesday, Aug. 15.

Question: Every now and again, I receive a call from a dairy producer who is upset that his DHIA butterfat test and his payment test are not the same. This morning such a call came in and I would like to show a piece of research that might help answer this question.

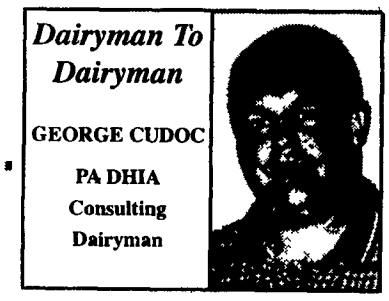
Butterfat test can vary greatly from day to day in individual cows. To illustrate this I include this chart from North Carolina State University.

We see wide variation in a five-day period as noted by cow #266 that tested a range of 1.7 to 5.95% butterfat. The average cow in this study actually varied fat test across the five-day period by 1.74% and one cow tested 3.8% differently from one milking to the other.

Many factors can influence the day-to-day variation in fat test. The day and time of sampling as seen above can certainly play a role. Environmental stresses such as heat and humidity can also alter fat test very quickly. Disease pressure has an impact on fat test and usually is coupled along with large changes in milk volume. Excitement associated with activities outside the normal day-to-day life of the cows can influence fat test. Foot trimming, rectal palpations, or simple changing groups or pastures might cause large fat variation. Nutritional changes can affect fat test and should be done as gradual as possible. Allow yourself to wonder a bit about the large change in a cow when she pastures at night and then is fed a TMR during the day.

Milking equipment, like any other, will wear as time goes by When DHIA milk meters are added temporarily to the system, vacuum levels often become inadequate thus compromising both the ability to properly milk the cow as well as the functionality of the meter itself

As you can see, there are many opportunities for milk fat test variation. These should point out the impracticality of comparing test results from DHIA and the processing plant. Often times we are not comparing the same milk DHIA usually measures one milking or one day and then is only part of a multiple milking pickup. Dean Amick (Director of Field Services) will suggest this when tank and DHIA butterfat test are severely different Pull one tank sample after proper agitation and then divide into three equal portions while keeping the milk stirred Send one to your dairy processor, one to the DHIA lab, and the other to an independent lab. This should answer some questions about testing procedures, herd management, or sampling technique used by the hauler Remember as you proceed, the high test is not always the correct one.



Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Junior Dairy Show Highlights Quality In All Breeds

MICHELLE RANCK
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Recently Lebanon Fairgrounds hosted the 45th Southeast District Junior Dairy Show. Although the classes were generally a smaller, more manageable size, quality was not sacrificed at the show.

The grand and senior champion spot in the Holstein class which included "great young cows" said judge Bob Knutsen, went to Rachel Krall's three-year-old DA-Sa-RA Emory Sidney.

Because of the past calf and milk contributions of the older cows they "deserved to be in the center," said Knutsen, who highlighted the winning cow's udder capacity also. "Emory Sidney" also won the best animal bred and owned division.

Krall, who recently graduated from Cedar Crest High School, will attend Shippensburg University in the fall to study biology. She has been in the show ring since she was seven years old.

Daniel Eberly, who attends Cedar Crest High School, showed the reserve Senior and reserve grand champion from the six years or older class. He has four years experience in the show ring.

"We had exceptional Ayrshire class with lots of strength there. We also had a good Jersey champ, I'm anxious to see what she does at states," said Ronald Daubert, Brown Swiss breeder, who judged the colored breeds in the show.

"We had a good representation of the different breeds," said Christine Williams, chairperson of the show committee. "I think the quality is up. The type of animals in the classes are the desirable quality at a district show. People are bringing their top animals because they realize that to go on to states, that's what they need to be taking. They need a blue here at the district show to go on to states."

One of the assets of this show is the smaller size. "Classes are a manageable size so nobody gets lost," said Williams. "That's important to kids. Parents want to bring their kids here because they won't get lost, they'll be recognized and the kids will want to go back again."

Rachel Krall, Lebanon, showed the senior champion, also the grand champion and best animal bred and owned. Daniel Eberly, Lebanon, showed the reserve senior champion, also the reserve grand champion. The junior champion Holstein spot went to Kendra Reist of Lebanon. Reserve junior champion in the Holstein division was Kristen Moyer, Womelsdorf.

In the colored breeds, Ayrshire senior champion, grand champion, and best animal bred and owned went to Daryl Maulfair, Jonestown. Maulfair's animal also earned the overall best animal bred and owned of the colored breeds. Reserve senior champion and reserve grand champion went to Rebecca Nolan of Cochranville. Jennifer Maulfair, Jonestown, showed the junior champion Ayrshire with Kevin Nolan of Cochranville placing with the reserve junior champion Ayrshire.

Harrison Miller of Harrisburg showed the junior champion, also the grand champion Brown Swiss and Sarah Moyer of Womelsdorf the reserve junior and reserve grand champion.

Grand champion, also the senior champion honors went to Erin Smith of Palmyra in the Guernsey division with Ashley Stahr of Annville taking the junior champion and reserve grand champion spots. Joel Smith, Palmyra, showed the reserve junior champion.

NEED HIGH QUALITY FORAGE?

NO-TILL GREEN SPIRIT RYEGRASS INTO THOSE TIRED OLD ALFALFA FIELDS!

Has much higher quality than triticale or wheat if cut before boot stage.
Is actually a better feed than alfalfa. Has more digestible fiber and sugars.
Does not head out until approximately May 12. Cut your alfalfa & GREEN SPIRIT first week of May and the GREEN SPIRIT will be ready again 3 weeks later. Yes, that's 2 cuttings and still time to plant corn.
So if you have moisture in the ground, no-till GREEN SPIRIT into your worn out alfalfa fields after 3rd cutting and still get a good cutting or two this fall, and lots of tonnage next spring.

Simmental Field Day Reported

JANET WILLIAMS
Adams Co. Correspondent

The winners at the 2000 Pennsylvania/Maryland Simmental Field Days proved that older is not always better. While three of the top placing Simmentals were handled by young people over the age of 14, the Reserve Grand Champion Heifer was owned by 9-year-old Luke Phipps of Harford County, Md.

Phipps, who lives on Windy Knoll Farm in Street, has been showing cattle since last year. He said he chose Pond View Blossom as his entry for this year's field days at Triple L Farms in New Oxford for two reasons.

"She was bigger than the other ones (on the farm) and she had a pretty face," he said.

The judges were more impressed with her capacity for her age and with her structural soundness and selected her from a field of four entries.

The Grand Champion Heifer was Raymond Stough's Shoemaker's Proud. Mary Stough, of North Codorus Township in York County, is in his last year of showing in the junior association, since he is 20.

Among the steers, the Grand Champion was WSCC Wall to Wall, shown by Ashley Vosloh of Mt. Airy, Md. The Reserve Grand Champion was Harry, shown by Shane Smithson of White Hall, Md.

Tammi Grubb of Hanover walked away with first place in the showmanship in the senior class, Grubb, 19, has been showing cattle for 11 years and said she has learned one thing: never be sure that you are going to be the winner.

Judge Cliff Orley praised the way she handled Harley and described her as courteous, alert and composed.

USDA Announces Rules For Pork Checkoff Referendum

DES MOINES, Ia. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has announced the rules for the referendum on continuation of the pork checkoff program. The nation's pork producers will have the opportunity to continue the successful 14-year-old pork checkoff, which has repositioned pork in the minds of U.S. consumers, by voting "yes" in a referendum. According to the rules, the vote will be held Sept. 19, 20, 21, 2000, at local Farm Service Agency (FSA) offices. Absentee voting will be Aug. 18 to Sept. 21 with absentee ballots available Aug. 1.

"I think it is critical that producers get informed and understand what the checkoff has done for them and can continue to do for them," said Donna Reifschneider co-chair of the Vote Yes Task Force. "I want to encourage all pork producers to vote yes. Pork producers need to be making the decision about our future, not letting that decision be made for us," according to the Smithton, Ill., pork producer.

Co-chair of the Vote Yes Task Force, Karl Johnson said, "The pork checkoff has been a phenomenal success at what it was designed to do, build demand and address issues that individual producers couldn't do on their own. The pork checkoff is producer-driven and has evolved to meet the needs of pork producers."

According to Johnson, a Mankato, Minn., pork producer, "the checkoff-funded pork. The Other White Meat® advertising campaign, originally undertaken to reposition pork to U.S. consumers, has done so. Today the campaign has increased U.S. pork demand, reversing a dramatic decline from 1979 to 1985."

Johnson continued that U.S. pork is making its mark worldwide. Through checkoff-funded foreign market development, the U.S. is now a net exporter of pork instead of a net importer. In 1990, the U.S. exported only 244 million pounds of pork. In 2000, the U.S. will export about 1.275 billion pounds of pork.

Johnson also sighted a 17 percent increase in pork's usage at restaurants as a direct result of checkoff-funded efforts. He said that increase is important because 54 percent of all U.S. pork is eaten by people away from home.

The USDA rules restrict voting eligibility to those producers who have marketed one or more hogs from Aug. 18, 1999, through Aug. 17, 2000. Upon a challenge of eligibility, the USDA will require documentation of proof of sale. A complete set of rules on the referendum on continuation of the pork checkoff program are available through the USDA, or by logging on to pork's website at www.nppc.org.

Stress, Sweat, And Sweet Success In Store At Shippensburg Fair

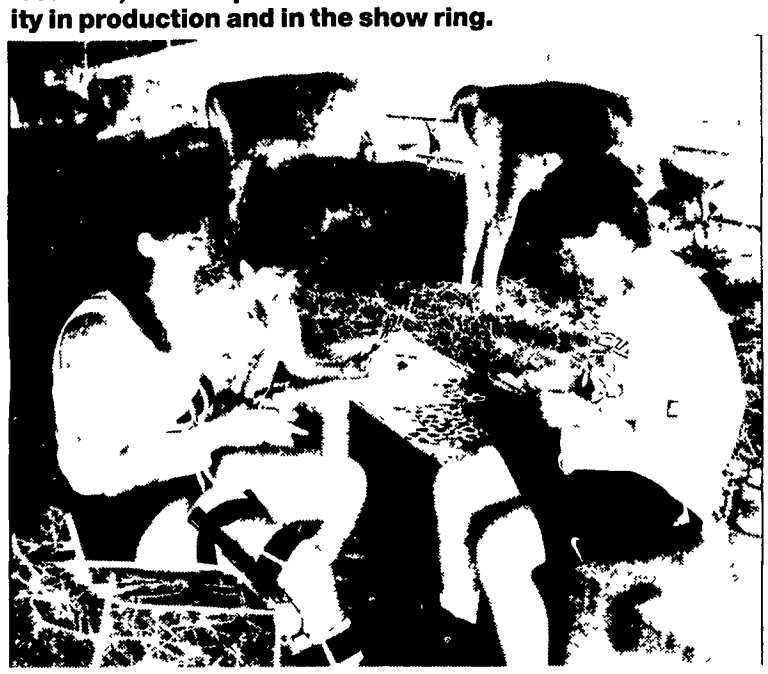
Lonni Wickard of Lo-Vi Swiss holds the winner of the lifetime production class. The Wickard family from a dairy in Shippensburg shows only Swiss at the fair. "That's just what we liked so we got into it. They're you're pets and we just enjoy them," said Lonni's wife Vickie, who takes care of fitting the animals for the shows. "They're more gentle and docile, just nice to work with. They're friendly and adapt a little quicker to different temperatures and weather," Vickie pointed out that the Swiss exhibit longevity in production and in the show ring.



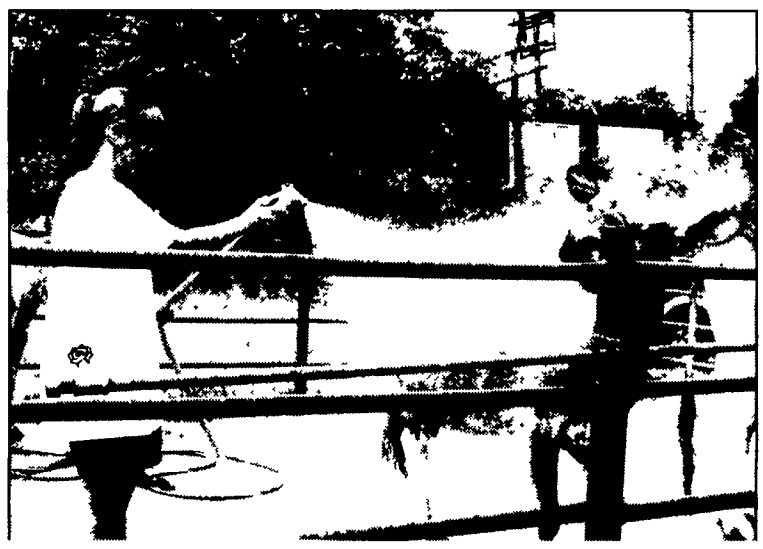
Cow playing cards were the hottest item sold at this year's Shippensburg fair. Holly Killinger, 9, Carlisle, Dominique Righi, 14, of Newville, and Tori Fuller, 14, also from Carlisle took advantage of a break in the action to try out the Holstein-patterned cards, even though Tori showed only Jerseys at the fair. "This is a tough show for the Jerseys, since it's a district show," said Tonda Fuller, Tori's mother.

Janel Zinn, 9, of Newville, Sarah Wickard, 12, of Lo-Vi Swiss and owner of the animals, and Jenny Zinn, 13, also of Newville won the Brown Swiss division of the three-generation class. The class is unique to the Shippensburg fair. "We just started this last year," said Art Salisbury of Alto Genetics who worked at the show's record table. "We're getting into a day and age where a cow can flush and have 20 daughters. This was a class actually brought out in the '50s and '60s in the Guernsey breed." Salisbury compares the class to picking up a pedigree to check a how a cow's family is evolving.

A preveterinary major at Juniata College, Billie Jo Zeigler showed the grand champion market goat. Zeigler spent her summer working with a veterinarian to prepare for her chosen career. Matthew Souder showed the reserve winner in the market goat class.

Also at Tuesday night's FFA livestock sale, the 115-pound grand champion market lamb, owned by Josette Fought, went for $800 to Hoss' Steak and Sea House. Bill Leib owned the reserve grand champion market lamb.

Celebrating her first year in the dairy beef ring, Amy Kaucher showed the champion dairy beef animal. She has shown Jersey cows for the past eight years.



Charity Fisher, 16, Greencastle, is a junior in the Tuscarora School District. Today Fisher, who learned how to fit cattle in 4-H, helps friends scrub down their Jerseys on a warm afternoon.

Scott Davidson, 6, and his brother Joshua, 9, scan the table of T-shirts and squeezable "stress cow key chains." Frances Reichard, left, from Chambersburg and Sally Gayman of Waynesboro work at the table sponsored by the Franklin County Holstein Dairy Promotion Committee.

Morgan Painter, 6, Cory O'Donnell, 7, and Garrett Chestnut, 2, all from Newville, enjoy learning about livestock firsthand.

"Zeke" and "Ben" strain to pull the 5,500-pound sled during the evening's horse pull competition. The pair garnered second place in the heavyweight division.

Jerry Shearer's team from Smithburg Md., won first place in the heavyweight division with George Brindle and Adam Horst of Chambersburg second. Tom Catterton and Walter Brady from Dunkirk Maryland took home first place in the lightweight division with Mark Phipps, also of Dunkirk, second.

Michele Reasner of Jemi Jerseys feeds her winners a little extra hay. The Newburg farm had a big day, garnering four grand champion spots, intermediate and senior, also overall, with their animals. The Reasners brought 23 Jerseys to the fair this year.

Ag Showcase Puts Competing Equipment In Same Field

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Editor

FAIR HILL, Md. - The 20th annual opportunity to see competing models and makes of farm tractors and equipment in competition side by side came again Tuesday. Ag Showcase Day at Cecil County Fair in Maryland, was held at Fair Hill Farms with the show put on by Coopers from Cecilton, Hoobers from Middletown, and Ag Industrial from Rising Sun.

In addition, educational information was given such as how to weight tractors for best performance and the opportunities for ethanol fuel. A representative of each dealership gave the tractor weight information. Robert Dinneen, vice president, Renewable Fuels Association, gave the ethanol presentation. Dinneen is a lobbyist in Washington DC for the fuels association.

Because of the MTBE additive in fossil fuel that is showing up in the nation's waterways, Dinneen said the future of ethanol is bright. Manufacturing capacity has increased mostly from farmer owned cooperatives. Since the nation's dependence on foreign oil has not diminished but increased in the last 10 years, we are still quite dependent on foreign imports. Dinneen said the Northeast may also experience more shortages and price increases because we have only a two-day reserve.

"It makes sense to use a domestic renewable fuel such as ethanol," Dinneen said. "And this is good for farm prices. The future for ethanol is bright."

Other sponsors listed on the program included Farm Credit, Sam Orr, Mike Scheeler, and Southern States. Equipment shown included round balers and grabbers, planters, tillers, hay making equipment, and tractors. David Wilson, Cecil County cooperative extension, was master of ceremonies.

TAKING CARE WHEN CHANGING COURSE

John Berry
Lehigh County
Marketing Agent

The owner of an existing business, having enjoyed some measure of success, decides to steer a new course for the company, launching a new product aimed at new markets. Management is eager for an additional source of revenues, and commits to this new direction with the best of intentions, assuming that since the business has an established market presence, sales in the new area will follow. Then the business ends up floundering on the submerged reefs of market misunderstanding.

A fledging entrepreneur launches a new business with much fanfare, touting unique new products and promptly sails into oblivion with the company lost to the mists of insufficient markets.

Both these entrepreneurs scuttled their businesses by failing to realize that most consumers do not purchase from you because you have a unique product or a recognized company name. They are drawn to your business because they have an unmet need for which you have an attractive solution. They will make their purchase from you if they believe you offer the best value. Therefore, you should verify sufficient need exists before launching your business into new product directions. Otherwise you may end up with mediocre results from having to spend massive advertising budgets trying to convince people they need your new widget (instead of spending prudent advertising dollars focused on where consumers can get what they already want).

As part of your prelaunch planning, ask yourself, if consumers are satisfied with present products, why would they want to switch? Resist the temptation to provide your own answers. Conduct independent market research in your local trade area. The cost of this research will be far less than the cost of failure.

What are the existing barriers to entry? If competitors already exist, you will need to overcome the advantages they already have. This usually requires considerable time, effort, and money.

For aspiring entrepreneurs, the focus should be on uncovering a clear consumer need that can be met through the application of their areas of expertise. Then and only then should they start developing a product to fulfill that need.

For owners of established businesses, if they want their company's name and reputation to aid in this process, they should not stray far from the products upon which their reputation has been built. For example, if you have a successful automotive dealership, your name will not be of considerable benefit if you open up a subsidiary selling home insurance.

As you plot the future course for your business, the foundation of your navigational philosophy should be a strategic map based on a strong content of marketing knowledge. You must strive not only to understand your customers' needs today but, even more importantly, how these needs are changing and where they will likely be tomorrow.

Whether you have a new or an existing business, without effective application of this future market knowledge or a sustained spate of fair winds known as luck, your company's voyage of profitable existence will be significantly shortened.

Secretary Hayes Conducts Plum Pox Briefing In Adams County

BIGLERVILLE (Adams Co.) — Agriculture Secretary Samuel E. Hayes Jr. recently conducted a briefing at the Pennsylvania State University Fruit Research Laboratory to explain how farmers can apply for indemnity payments and to announce the limited expansion of the plum pox virus (PPV) quarantine area.

Hayes announced that the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Plum Pox Virus Commercial Orchard Fruit Tree Indemnity Program is in place, and applications will be accepted through the Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Plant Industry.

"Following recent meetings in Washington, D.C., with federal agriculture officials, we arrived at a formula to compensate growers that will be managed through the state," Hayes said. "Now growers who are impacted by PPV can receive some reparation for the losses that this disease has caused."

Hayes also announced that the department recently detected sites outside the current quarantined areas of Latimore and Huntington townships in Adams County and South Middleton Township, Cumberland County.

"Quarantined areas will expand to include Dickinson Township, Cumberland County, and portions of Menallen and Tyrone townships in Adams County," Hayes said. "Inspectors with the state Bureau of Plant Industry and the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service currently are surveying farms in the affected areas to determine the extent of infection as we take steps to eradicate this disease from our commonwealth orchards."

PPV affects stone-bearing fruits, including peaches, plums, nectarines and apricots. It is characterized by round spots (pox) on fruit, leaves, stems and seeds. It does not kill trees, but makes fruit unmarketable and drastically reduces yields. The disease does not affect humans.

Pennsylvania is a leading producer of fruit, ranking fourth nationally in peaches. Adams County is Pennsylvania's leading fruit-producing county.

In 1998, the value of Pennsylvania's stone fruit production was approximately $25 million.

Last year, Gov. Tom Ridge released $2 million to contain and eradicate the plum pox virus in Pennsylvania.

Groff Field Day 'Exchange' Emphasizes Environmentally Friendly Farming

Society, said Rominger, expects farmers to be environmental stewards. But there are no financial rewards. However, the proposed 2000 Farm Bill "builds on the successes we've had," he said, with previous Farm Bills.

The proposed new bill enhances additional conservation and land stewardship programs, and could allow programs to actually pay farmers as a reward for carrying out those programs.

As a token of appreciation for his visit Wednesday, Groff presented Rominger with a baseball cap inscribed with the words, "Soil Is Meant To Be Covered."

Rominger, who has served as president of the Western Association of State Departments of Agriculture and the Western U.S. Agricultural Trade Association, noted afterward that farmers should be called "environmental managers."

If the Farm Bill passes, to be paid directly for their efforts, Rominger noted that approved conservation practices have to be in place and best management practices, including cover crops and some form of minimum tillage, would have to be employed.

The payment would be graded on a scale yet to be figured out by the type of practice.

Rominger was selected Agriculturalist of the Year at the California State Fair in 1992.

Dr. Robert Steele, dean of agriculture for Penn State, spoke about the continuing partnership between university, industry, and the federal government that make field days like Groff's possible.

About 350 producers and agri-industry representatives attended the field day, despite pouring rain. Some demonstrations were canceled at the field day because of the inclement weather.

Groff farms with wife Cheri and children, Dana, 7; Lauren, 6; and David, 3. Steve's work was profiled in Lancaster Farming in the early '90s and was featured in a three-part PBS TV miniseries, "Journey to Planet Earth." Groff was also selected as the 1999 National No-Till Innovator of the Year.

Despite heavy rain, about 350 attended the field day at Cedar Meadow Farm on Wednesday. Many spent time inside the huge exhibitor tent.

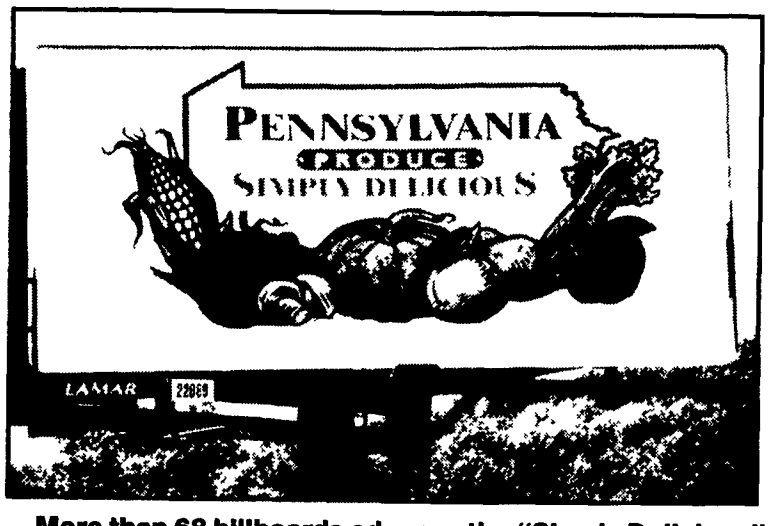
Simply Delicious Goes Roadside



More than 68 billboards advance the "Simply Delicious" logo across Pennsylvania. The campaign is an effort to connect local producers and supermarkets in a business relationship. This billboard is located outside of Ephrata on Route 322.

MICHELLE RANCK
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The "Pennsylvania Produce, Simply Delicious" logo will be increasingly familiar to residents with the help of billboards in metropolitan areas across the commonwealth.

According to Mike Varner, chief of commodity promotion division at the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, 68 boards went up in June with more scheduled to go up over the course of the summer.

"We have them in every corner of the state," said Varner. The boards are concentrated in the heavily-populated area.

"Where the consumers are the primary focus," said Varner.

In total, the billboards will have 300 placements. Each month is considered to be a placement, so a board in the same place for several months will have several placements.

The billboards are a cooperative effort with the Pennsylvania Vegetable Marketing and Research Program. While most of the boards will come down in late August, Varner plans on several boards remaining where the space is not used.

The focus of the "Simply Delicious" campaign, said Varner, is to foster communication between the local producer and supermarkets. The program was initiated two years ago.

"We're doing whatever we're able to do to help stores find a local market," said Varner. "We're trying to help foster the relationship both ways, to encourage the stores to call the local farmer."

To help make business contacts, the Bureau of Market Development sent 300 point-of-purchase kits to approximately 300 retailers in Pennsylvania. These kits included samples of "bin wrap," which is a roll of vinyl with the "Simply Delicious" logo on it to wrap around a crate, plus price cards and posters bearing the logo. The billboards and in-store promotions will combine to increase both producer and consumer recognition of the program.

Northeast Order Uniform Price For June 2000

BOSTON, Mass. — Erik F. Rasmussen, Market Administrator for the Northeast Marketing Area, has announced that the statistical uniform price for June 2000 is $13.25 per hundredweight or $1.14 per gallon for milk delivered to plants located in Suffolk County, Mass. (Boston). The statistical uniform price is the benchmark minimum producer blend price paid to dairy farmers, prior to allowable deductions, for milk containing 3.5 percent butterfat, 2.99 percent protein, and 5.69 percent other solids. The price received by an individual dairy farmer will vary as the component composition of a farm's milk differs from the established benchmarks.

Mr. Rasmussen also stated that the producer price differential (PPD) for June is $3.79 per hundredweight for milk delivered to plants located in Suffolk County. The PPD represents each producer's share of the value generated by the marketwide pool on a hundredweight basis. The PPD, which is added to the payment producers receive for their milk's components, is adjusted for the location of the receiving plant. The statistical uniform price and PPD decrease by scheduled amounts the more distant the plant is from Suffolk County. The June PPD is $3.69 in New York, NY, and $3.59 in Philadelphia.

The Class prices for milk pooled in June are as follows: Class I, $14.95 (Suffolk County); Class II, $13.08; Class III, $9.46; and Class IV, $12.38. Had the Northeast Order been in effect in 1999, comparable class prices for June 1999 would have been: Class I, $14.41, Class II, $13.84, Class III, $11.04, and Class IV price, $13.14. The component values for June are protein, $1.4278 per pound; butterfat, $1.4128 per pound; other solids, $0.0438 per pound; and nonfat solids, $0.8556 per pound.

Milk receipts from producers totaled 1.949 billion pounds. Class I utilization, milk processed as beverage milk, was 42.1 percent of producer milk receipts. The average Class I utilization, for the three predecessor orders that were combined to form the Northeast Order, was 37.8 percent in June 1999.

The manufacture of Class II products such as cream, ice cream, yogurt, and cottage cheese utilized 17.9 percent of producer milk. Milk used to manufacture Class III products such as cheese (American and Italian) and evaporated and condensed products utilized 30.1 percent of total milk receipts. Class IV usage (butter, nonfat and whole milk powder) equaled 9.9 percent of the total.

Comments Received

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The USDA announced recently that 40,774 public comments were submitted on its revised National Organic Program proposed rule.

The comment period for the proposed rule, which would establish national standards for the production and handling of organically produced products, closed on June 12. A final rule is expected by the end of 2000.

"We are pleased that so many people have taken the time to share their views on organic standards with us," said Kathleen A. Merrigan, administrator of USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service.

"Although the majority of the comments are positive, some have raised important issues that we are looking at closely, as we move toward issuing the final standards."

The proposal was published in the March 13 Federal Register, and also can be found on the National Organic Program home page: www.ams.usda.gov-/nop. All comments can be viewed at this same site.

Thomas Brings Back Clover, Wins Champion At 4-H Dairy Show

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Morgan Thomas thought she'd bring back the cow that won the blue ribbon the first time.

So Wednesday afternoon, holding onto C Wridale Broker Clover, a 7-year-old Holstein, proved fruitful as Morgan won grand champion Holstein at the Lancaster County 4-H Dairy Show.

Morgan, whose family showed then-3-year-old Clover (S: Conant-Acres- JY Broker-ET, D: Jaclean Jet Cake) to grand champion at the Lancaster County Holstein Show in 1997, said she plans to go to Solanco and Lampeter fairs and the Farm Show.

Morgan, 11, is the daughter of John and Sandy Thomas, Lancaster. Morgan is in the seventh grade at Lampeter Strasburg.

Morgan also won grand champion Jersey and champion Holstein dam and daughters at the show. She also won her division in the showmanship contest.

Reserve champion of the show went to Benjamin Welk with his 4-year-old, LovDal Skybuck Elvisa (S: Hanover Hill Skybuck, D: MS LovDal Waden Echo).

Benjamin, 16, is the son of Gary and Donna Welk, Quarryville. He is a junior at Solanco High School.

Benjamin also won reserve dam and daughter at the show.

Nicole Welk, 10, daughter of Kris and Mark Welk, Quarryville, won Holstein junior champion with her fall senior calf. She will be in the fifth grade at Clermont Elementary School.

Blake Brubaker, 13, son of Deb and Lowell Brubaker, Manheim, won reserve champion of the junior show with his summer yearling. Blake is in the eighth grade at Manheim Central Middle School.

There were 76 animals and 38 exhibitors at the show. Judges were Jed Beshore (type) and Sue Beshore (showmanship) of New Cumberland.

Somerset District Holstein Show Held

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

MEYERSDALE (Somerset Co.) — In a good sense, a strong shot of Bourbon July 12 at the county fairgrounds brought out a champion for Pennwood Farms at the Somerset District Holstein Show, however, no inebriation was involved.

Pennwood Stardust Bourbon, a senior three-year-old was in excellent form as far as judge Curtis Day was concerned and that couldn't help but put the Stoltzfus family in high spirits — no pun intended — when he selected the lady as grand champion.

Born January 5, 1996, a daughter out of Browndale Stardust and Lovdal Inspire Daquire, Bourbon also had the best udder in the class. Breeder was Duane and Kevin Stoltzfus, Berlin.

Kirsten Miller from Boswell had the reserve champion in Milbro Major Babe, a senior two-year-old out of Gor-Wood-D Super Sire Major and Milbro Skybuck Babette. Babe, additionally, was junior show grand champion for the 21-year-old Miller who is approaching a five-week sojourn in China.

Matt Mosholder's junior three-year-old GCS Leader Buckwheat was the junior show's reserve champion. Mosholder is from Rockwood.

Manure Odors From Livestock Operations

Kenneth B. Kephart
Professor of Animal Science
Pennsylvania State University

Complaints of odors generated by livestock operations have intensified in recent years as facilities have increased in size. Many volatile organic and inorganic compounds released from livestock operations, particularly swine facilities, have objectionable odors.

The amount and strength of the odor is influenced by the type of manure storage facilities, how and when the manure is applied, and the presence of wet and dusty surfaces in the livestock facility.

The Process And Perception Of Smell

Every odorant has a threshold concentration. Below this concentration, the odor compound can not be detected. The area of the brain that processes smell overlaps with the area that controls emotion. For this reason, unpleasant odors can affect mood, and may prompt unpleasant memories.

In an odor study last summer, we asked neighbors living near swine operations to evaluate odor intensity daily over a six-week period. As expected, neighbors closer to the swine units, and those living to the east and south reported higher odor scores than those living further away, and to the north and west. But odor scores were also affected by a number of personal factors. For example, if the neighbor knew the swine producer well, if the farm was perceived as attractive, if the neighbor's self-reported health status was high and if the swine facility was not visible from the home or road, odor scores recorded by neighbors tended to decrease.

Personal factors that had little or no impact on odor scores included: income, gender, age, education, whether the neighbor had been raised on a farm, length of time the neighbor had lived there, and the neighbor's reported knowledge of swine production.

Response To Odors

An on-going area of research is whether odors are simply a nuisance, or a legitimate health threat. Research conducted by Susan Schiffman at Duke University shows that the mood of people living near swine facilities is negatively affected during the times they smell odors from the facility. During our odor study last summer, we compared responses of neighbors of swine operations to those of rural residents not living near large livestock facilities. Both groups reported identical overall health scores.

Neighbors, however, indicated they experienced cough, nausea, fatigue, and throat irritation more often than did non-neighbors. There were no significant differences between the two groups in regard to frequency of headaches, muscular aches, chest tightness, depression or anxiety. These results are similar to those reported by Kelly Donham's laboratory at Iowa State University.

Dispersion Of Odors

An important aspect of odor dispersion is that the width of the odor plume changes very little as it moves from the source. Thus, wind blowing across a 1,000-foot-wide field with freshly applied manure will potentially affect more people than wind blowing across a 300-foot-wide manure application area.

During a sunny day, most of the odors are carried up with rising air currents. This is the primary reason that neighbors won't notice odors as often or as far away during days when the sky is clear.

During the night, the ground is cool so there are no rising air currents. In fact, when the air is very stable, temperatures are often inverted or upside down. This means that the temperature near the ground is lower.

Cool Summer Salads

The hot days and warm nights of summer call for easy-to-make, easy-to-eat salads. Add protein and vegetables to a simple potato, pasta or greens-based salad and you have a meal. Grated or cubed cheeses or canned fish like salmon, tuna, crab and shrimp are perfect choices.

Check out the supermarket produce aisle or your favorite roadside stand for the season's best produce—from artichokes to zucchini. Marinated products like canned olives, pickles or pimientos add extra zest, color and intense flavor. Seasoning blends take the guesswork out of a trip to the spice rack.

The following salad recipes feature some variations on old favorites, as well as some new ideas for light main dish salads that require minimal cooking—perfect for a summer meal!

Salad Bites

- Wash greens thoroughly. Place them in a sink filled with lukewarm water and swish around; tepid water helps to remove the grit faster than cool water. Remove any roots and stems from the greens, if necessary. Whirl in a salad spinner or pat dry in paper towels.
- Canned fish is a great source of protein, calcium and Omega 3 fatty acids. The small zip-top cans are great to keep in a desk drawer at the office or in the car. Pick up a side salad at a fast-food restaurant, and top it with this convenient and delicious source of low-fat protein.
- Add flavor and color to pasta, potato or lettuce-based salads by tossing in strips of pimiento. This large, red, heart-shaped sweet pepper is available canned and stores conveniently on your pantry shelf.
- Simple vinaigrette is usually a 3:1 ratio of oil to vinegar. Vary the taste by selecting balsamic vinegar, flavored vinegars or citrus juices. Popular seasoning blends can add zest to any dressing.
- Sprinkle seasoning blends on a skinless, boneless chicken breast or fish fillet and grill. (Do ahead, freeze or refrigerate; use when needed.) Serve on top of salad greens.

Know Your Greens

Arugula or rocket salad—A tender, mustard-flavored green with a bitter flavor is a favorite salad ingredient in many European countries. It is sold in small bunches which should be fresh and bright green.

Boston/Bibb lettuce—Also known as Butterhead, this head-type lettuce is characterized by light green, flexible leaves and a mild flavor.

Cabbage—Three varieties are common in the United States. Green or domestic cabbage has a round head and is light green with compact leaves. Red cabbage has a round head with purple-red, compact leaves. It is sweeter than domestic cabbage Savoy cabbage has a round to oblong head with loosely compact, crinkled leaves. It is a pale green color.

Iceberg lettuce—Iceberg lettuce is the most common lettuce used in the United States. It is characterized by compact heads, light green color, crisp texture and delicate flavor.

Leaf lettuce—Leaf lettuce has loosely bunched, curly leaves with crisp texture. Both green and red leaf lettuces are available. Red leaf lettuce is characterized by green leaves with red-tinged edges.

Radicchio—This salad green has a compact head consisting of maroon-red leaves with white veins Radicchio flavor is distinct and slightly bittersweet. Soak radicchio in cold water for 10 minutes for a less intense flavor.

Romaine lettuce—Used most often in Caesar Salads, Romaine is a head-type lettuce consisting of long, loaf-shaped, narrow leaves with very crisp texture.

Spinach—To prepare spinach, wash the leaves well; then remove the stems by folding each leaf lengthwise along the stem with its underside facing you and pull the stem down as close to the leaf tip as possible.

- 1 (12-ounce) can solid white tuna in water, drained and flaked
- 1 (4-ounce) jar pimientos strips, drained
- 1 Granny Smith apple, peeled, cored and julienned
- 2 cups celery root, julienned (or use regular celery)
- 1/2 pound small red potatoes, roasted until just tender and cooled
- 1/4 cup chopped red onion
- 6 hard-boiled eggs, cut into 3/4-inch pieces
- 12 teardrop tomatoes, halved (or 4 Roma tomatoes, cut into wedges)
- 1/2 cup chopped cilantro, lightly packed
- 1/2 cup chopped fresh basil, lightly packed
- Julienned fried tortilla pieces, for garnish, optional

In a small bowl, whisk together the vinaigrette ingredients until well blended. Set aside.

In a medium saucepan, bring 2 inches of water to a boil over moderately high heat. Add the green beans and cook until just tender, about 5 minutes. Rinse under cold running water; drain well.

Combine the green beans and remaining ingredients in a large mixing bowl. Add the dressing and toss well.

Divide evenly into four portions and garnish with toasted sesame seeds and fried tortilla chips, if desired.

Tuna and Papaya Salad

Makes 4 salads

- 1 (12-ounce) can solid white tuna in water
- 4 cups mixed spring greens or mesclun salad mix
- 1 (7-ounce) jar pimientos, strips, drained
- 1 1/2 cups (about 1 large) ripe papaya (not too soft) seeded and cut in 1/2-inch cubes
- 1 cup (about 4 pieces) Roma tomatoes, cut in 1/2-inch cubes
- 1/4 cup fresh cilantro leaves, stems removed
- 3/4 cup (about 2 stalks) celery, cut in 1/2-inch pieces
- 3/4 cup (1 medium) cucumber, peeled and cut in 1/2-inch cubes
- 1/2 cup red onion, cut in 1/4-inch pieces
- 1/4 cup green onions, chopped
- 3/4 cup green bell pepper, cut in 1/4-inch pieces
- Honey Lime Vinaigrette (recipe follows)

Garnish:

- Belgian endive leaves, optional
- Cilantro leaves
- Roasted peanuts, chopped

Drain the tuna and flake with a fork. Arrange the salad greens on four plates. Toss the remaining ingredients with the Vinaigrette. Divide the vegetable mixture evenly between the four salads, mounding it on top of the greens. Garnish with endive leaves, cilantro and peanuts.

Meat and potatoes have long been a year-round, rural food staple.

This probably came about, at least in part, due to rural folks' greater space availability and tendency to raise animals and produce for their own needs, along with what was marketed to earn a living.

"Well, if you marry a farmer, at least you'll always have something to eat," was my mother's philosophy about my plans (years ago!) to wed a rural lad who, initially, raised pigs.

Many of our meals ever since then have featured some form of meat and potatoes — except when some sort of pasta reigns for the day. The beef, and sometimes the pork, is of our own cultivation. Chicken, turkey, and fish come from the same place most everyone gets theirs — a retail meat counter.

Early on, I followed mom's cooking methods, which included plenty of vegetables and fruits, even before the popular "five a day" servings of them became a nutritional recommendation.

Fortunately, The Farmer is an adventurous — and never "picky" — eater, and will at least sample anything you put on the table. So we enjoy lots of salads and a variety of garden and bought fresh and frozen vegetables. Our kids grew up not knowing any better — and without a bunch of so-called "junk" food in the house — so they learned to eat yucky broccoli and squash and lima beans. And to enjoy them.

Still, it's always interesting to throw in something new and see what sort of reaction it generates.

"Ohhhh," he says. "Flowers in the salad?"

The phenomenon of eating flowers is probably not new, just a current culinary trend. Actually, eating "flowers" is pretty commonplace, or at least the preliminary to flowers. Broccoli and cauliflower, for instance, are the buds of flowers just waiting to happen if we don't first "nuke" them in the microwave and smother them with cheese.

Some cheery, poppy-orange and raspberry-sherbet-pink blossoms of nasturtiums thriving in a corner of the flower bed were grown in part for the purpose of salad color, just for fun. A fresh mixed salad is most appealing to most of us when it boasts a variety of colors and textures. Ours often feature red-leafed lettuces, crunchy bits of orange carrots, chunks of pale lime cucumbers, crisp white radishes with red haloes, crumbles of cream-colored cauliflower, succulent pepper slivers and, best of all, right now they highlight man-sized hunks of luscious, home-grown tomato.

Sprinkled occasionally with the neon-hues of nasturtiums. Which actually have a sort of peppery taste, if you can bring yourself to chomp into the pretty little things. Spring violets, the little blue-purple ones, are also tasty and colorful salad additions or garnishes, as are pansies. While we haven't personally tried them, tulips and daylilies are also reported to be culinary treasures.

Squash blossoms are considered a delicacy when dipped into a batter and deep fried, or used as a wrapping or unusual serving container for something like chicken salad. That'd be one way to keep the zucchini from overproducing those baseball-sized fruits; snag the blossoms before they have a chance to get away from you.

While you might wow your ladies' club or stump your kids with blossom additions to your summer cuisine, betcha' you won't find them on your local salad bar. Lots of folks prefer their roses in a vase, rather than lathered with ranch or French dressing.

But if they ever do, at least the added color should be reasonably priced. There would be a lot of flower petals in a pound.

Now there's a niche market for some daring garden-market entrepreneur.

Breakfast Ideas

Breakfast is a great way to refuel your body and prepare it for the day ahead of you. It helps you to wake up and can even help control weight-as long as you're careful about what you're eating. Instead of reaching for donuts or pastries, try toast or eggs, even a bowl of cereal and a glass of orange juice.

Need some ideas for a healthy breakfast?

- Bag some granola, cheese and a piece of fruit to eat on the way to school.
- Healthy cookies with a bowl of fruit and yogurt.
- Peanut butter on graham crackers with sliced bananas and raisins.
- Instant cereal topped with fresh or canned fruit and a glass of milk.
- Cottage cheese with fruit, and whole grain muffins or bread with lowfat cream cheese or jam.

Today childcare and the nation's economy go hand in hand. More than 13 million married or single women are in the work force. Childcare is the challenge of today's family.

Many parents fear that a child will relate more to a caregiver than to a parent. From infancy, a child needs warm consistent care. Researchers report the importance of a good fit between parent or caregiver and child or infant.

Good news for worrisome parents. Research notes that infants, from a very young age, are capable of becoming attached to more than one person. However, they do develop an order of preference.

So, what does this mean? Warm, consistent care is key. Childcare can be a good experience. Good care by parents and caregivers is essential.

Good child day care requires three components. First, a caregiver must provide care and guidance to the children. The caregiver must be willing to work with the parents. The goal is to ensure the child will grow and learn in a warm, secure environment.

A good caregiver is well trained. Being an experienced "Mom" or "Dad" is good training. Maker certain the caregiver likes children. Even though the caregiver is in business, caring for children is not "just a job."

Caregivers need to know child development. Knowledge of developmentally appropriate behavior and normal growth patterns is essential. Caregivers should understand what children can and want to do at different stages of growth. Parents should be assured that the caregiver knows that each child is unique and special. Talk with the caregiver about behavior issues.

Are the caregiver's child rearing attitudes similar to the parents? Are the family's cultural values respected? A young child needs caregivers who respond in a consistent manner. Infants need to know that when they cry, they will be held and cuddled.

Interaction with the child from the earliest age is critical. Check and see if the caregiver reads, talks and sings to the children. Communication skills begin with infancy. It is the basis of learning and social development in later years.

Parents need to know the ratio of caregivers to children and infants. Ask if the caregiver is licensed or registered. If so, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania places restrictions on the ratio of caregivers to children. A child needs individual attention from a caregiver. If too many children are "in care," each child will not have a chance for someone to listen to them, be read a story, or sing a song.

Second, is the setting suitable? The facility must be safe and healthy. Is the facility clean and comfortable? Ask yourself: "If you were a child, would you want to stay here?" The equipment and supplies — toys, games, and furniture — should be in good condition. Toys should encourage physical, social, and cognitive development of the child. Is there enough space indoors and out so all the children can move safely and freely? Watching television or videos, even educational ones, is becoming a prime activity for the children. From the earliest years, children need to be engaged in activities.

Ask if the caregiver has the children on a routine. Most children feel more secure with even minimal routine or schedule. However, if the schedule is vastly different from the schedule at home, the child can become very confused. Children thrive on consistency.

Finally, what will day care cost you? Day care costs vary depending on the type of care, the days of care and the hours of care. Most caregivers ask the parents to sign a contract. While caregivers may love your child, they are in business. Signing a contract is good business for all parties. A contract tells parents what they can expect from the caregiver and the facility. Policies are stated. Parents know their obligations.

Ask about paying for days your child is sick. What happens if you are late picking up the child? Expect a fee for care after regular hours.

Deciding on a day care program is a challenge. Visit a variety of programs. Talk with caregiver and parents. Take your child along. The caregiver, the facility and the health and safety of the child are the key elements. Select a program in which both you and your child will be comfortable.

the Signature of FFA Success

West Snyder FFA Members Earn Eight Regional Proficiency Awards

West Snyder FFA Chapter submitted 12 FFA proficiency applications for consideration in state and regional competition this year.

Eight of those applicants were awarded first place in regional competition.

The FFA Proficiency Award program recognizes members who excel in a supervised agricultural experience (SAE) program. These FFA members have exceptional accomplishments in progressing toward specific career objectives in agriculture.

West Snyder FFA members who earned the north central regional awards included Brandon Herman; beef entrepreneurship, Kate Heeter; beef placement; Jennifer McWilliams; dairy placement, Heather Hollenbach; sheep entrepreneurship, Heidi Good; equine science, James Wright; poultry entrepreneurship, Brandon Heckman; feed grain production, and Jodi Fetterolf; swine entrepreneurship.

Other applicants included Melissa McWilliams; dairy placement and entrepreneurship; Jennifer McWilliams; dairy entrepreneurship; and Heather Hollenbach; diversified livestock. All regional winners received a cash award and are eligible for the competition next year.

Tulpehocken FFA

Four members of the Tulpehocken FFA Chapter will be traveling to the regional FFA contest in Springfield, Mass. this September after placing second in the Career Development Event (CDE) of livestock judging last month at the three-day Pennsylvania FFA State Convention at Penn State's main campus.

Jonathan Bicksler, Kristy Dietrich, Cathy Levan, and Emilie Miller will be the first team to compete at a national contest for Tulpehocken in more than a decade.

Bicksler, Dietrich, and Miller will be sophomores, and Levan will be a junior when they return to school this fall. Individually, Levan was fourth, Dietrich was seventh, Miller was 11th, and Bicksler placed 57th.

Miller explained that, during the first part of the contest, the team had to predict what USDA grade (such as prime, choice, select, etc.) a class of market steers would score when slaughtered. They also had to perform similar evaluations for market swine and market lambs.

"The next part of the contest was entitled "Keep-Cull,'" said Miller. "There were eight head of livestock in a pen, and contestants had to evaluate the livestock's individual predicted data on how they would reproduce and pass on their genetic traits. We then selected four head to "keep' and four head to "cull,' or not keep in the group."

The remainder of the contest involved judging six classes of livestock — two cattle classes, two sheep classes, and two swine classes. Every contestant gave oral reasons on one swine class. They prepared a one- to two-minute speech on their reasons for placing the class and commented on the livestock in that class.

During the 2000 Pennsylvania FFA State Convention, Tulpehocken chapter members, along with the 1,000-plus FFA members and guests, were greeted and welcomed by the 1999-2000 state officers.

Milk Moustache Mobile On The "Moove'

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Joe Mortier travels from city to city telling people about the importance of drinking milk and physical activity.

He travels with one of four milk mustache mobiles that visit 100 cities, from April through October, on a crusade to educate Americans about the importance of daily physical activity and the vital role nutrient-packed milk plays for health-conscious Americans to get in shape, lose weight, or stay fit.

Last week, the mobile made a stop at Martin's Country Market, Ephrata. Mortier and his team played basketball, baseball, and soccer with kids and teen-agers while dairy princesses and employees of dairy organizations offered free fitness assessments, which included body composition tests, and tests tjat measured strength and flexibility.

Participants received a plan on how to incorporate more daily physical activities into his or her routine, and healthy eating advice from a registered dietitian.

One of the biggest draws was participating in the milk moustache contest. Those who stopped by the Milk Mobile were offered a cup of milk and a chance to have their photo snapped and entered in a nationwide search for a winning pose to be featured in an ad in ESPN Magazine. Each participant also received a copy of the photograph to take home. The team also handed out keychains, posters, tattoos, and T-shirts.

While dribbling basketball, Morteir and his team told kids that milk plays a vital role in helping reach fitness goals.

"Make sure you get the calcium your body needs by drinking at least three 8-ounce glasses a day," he said.

Morteir sees the need to teach kids to become active and stay fit.

Studies show that the average child spends only 14 minutes — or about one percent of their time — each day in physical activity and 78 percent of their time in sedentary activities such as watching television or playing video games.

Evidence of America's inactivity is the results of a study that show obesity has reached epidemic levels. More than half of all adults are overweight and 18 percent are considered obese — up from 12 percent in 1991.

Mortier was especially pleased to tell adults that new research shows that lowfat milk may help control body fat and reduce obesity.

A recent study at the University of Tennessee found that a diet high in lowfat dairy products actually changes the way fat cells do their job, causing them to make less fat and turn on the machinery to breakdown fat and ultimately control weight gain.

A second study at Purdue University showed that women who consumed at least 780 mg of calcium per day in their diets either lost body fat or stayed the same over a two-year period. The control group, who ate and exercised just as much, but got less calcium, gained body fat.

"Nutrition and exercise go hand in hand," Mortier said of the need to eat healthy and exercise more.

For more information about the Get Moo-ving With Milk tour and the nutritional benefits of drinking milk, log onto the website at www.why-milk.com or call 1-800-why-milk.

Milk moustache smiles are common from Josh, 7, and Dave, 5. The sons of Dean and Sharon Wenger, Denver, said they drink lots of milk.

Anson and Mildred Epting, Reamstown, remember to drink their milk everyday without being reminded by Schuylkill Dairy Princess Samantha Snyder and Dauphin County Alternate Holly Miller.

Sweet Corn Kernels Of Truth

"Way high by the 4th of July," said Jeannette Mikos of the 10-feet corn she and her husband Daniel grew on their 120-acre Dillsburg (York County) farm. The Mikos farm and many others are experiencing record crop growth, contrary to the old adage "knee high by the 4th of July." With Jeannette are daughters Angela and Katie with dog Lassie.

The key to good sweet corn is freshness. The sugar in sweet corn rapidly begins turning to starch within hours after being harvested. About 40 percent of the sugar can be lost in six hours at room temperature. Refrigeration slows this process, but the sooner corn is eaten after harvesting, the better.

Many growers are growing sugar-enhanced or super-sweet varieties that genetically have more sugar in the kernels. Some of these early sugar-enhanced varieties were developed at Penn State University. Because they have more sugar to begin with, they can be stored for longer periods and still have acceptable sweetness. However, standard sweet corn varieties, when purchased freshly harvested, will still have a delicious, traditional corn flavor and sweetness.

According to growers across the state, most Pennsylvanians prefer bi-color corn, traditionally known as Butter and Sugar. However, in south central and southeastern Pennsylvania, white is the preferred corn. Certain localities and clienteles still like their corn to be yellow so many growers also grow some yellow varieties.

Regardless of the color, Pennsylvanians can expect to enjoy an abundant supply of sweet corn each year. It is the leading vegetable crop in the Commonwealth with about 18,000 acres grown annually. Most of this sweet corn acreage is grown for fresh market sales. As a result, Pennsylvania ranks as the eighth largest sweet corn producing state in the nation. Fresh corn will be available from July into October. About 3,000 acres of the sweet corn acreage are grown to be processed into frozen, dried or canned corn products available year around.

While fresh sweet corn is a delicious ingredient in many recipes, it is most popular served right on the cob, and is so simple to prepare. Simply boil husked ears for about five minutes, or grill the ears in the husk for 15-20 minutes after soaking them in water for about 10 minutes. Fresh corn on the cob is also easily prepared in the microwave by wrapping two husked ears in a damp paper towel and cooking them for seven minutes on high power, turning the ears once.

No matter how it's prepared, fresh sweet corn is a good source of vitamins A and C, and a single ear contains only 90 calories. The following corn recipes from the Pennsylvania State Grange Cookbooks are two additional ways to include corn in your meal:

CORN SOUFFLE

3 tablespoons butter
¼ cup flour
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 cup milk
1 cup home-cooked or canned corn
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 teaspoons grated onion
4 egg yolks, beaten
4 egg whites
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar

Melt butter in saucepan over medium heat. Stir in flour, salt and pepper. Add milk gradually, stirring constantly. Cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Stir in corn, lemon juice, onion and beaten egg yolks. Let stand until cool. Beat egg whites until frothy. Add cream of tartar. Beat until soft peaks form. Fold gently into corn mixture. Spoon into greased 1½ quart baking dish. Bake at 325 degrees for one hour. Serves six.

Macungie Grange #1569

CORN FRITTERS

3 egg yolks
2⅔ cups cooked corn
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup flour
3 egg whites, stiffly beaten
Oil for frying

Beat egg yolks in bowl until light and lemon colored. Stir in corn, salt, pepper, and flour. Fold in egg whites gently. Drop by spoonfuls into hot oil in skillet. Cook until golden brown turning once. Serves six.

Quick Buying Tips For Pennsylvania Sweet Corn

The Pennsylvania Vegetable Marketing and Research Program offers these tips when buying sweet corn:

- Look for fresh green husks and ears that are filled all the way to the tip.
- Kernels should be tender, full and firm enough to puncture easily under the slightest pressure.
- To preserve the corn's sugar content and flavor, refrigerate immediately after purchase.

ANSWER — Doris Martin, Hagerstown, Md., requested a recipe for Italian wedding soup. Thanks to Josephine Matenus for sending a recipe that she writes is truely delicious.

Italian Wedding Soup

4-5 pound stewing chicken
Water to cover
¼ cup dried onions
¼ cup parsley
Salt and pepper to taste
2 to 3 cloves garlic, minced
2 medium onions, chopped
1 bunch endive, chopped
1 large bunch escarole, chopped
3-4 stalks celery, chopped
4-5 large carrots, sliced
1 pound pasta (tiny shells)
Parmesan or Romano cheese, garnish

Meatballs:
1 pound ground beef
1 pound ground pork
1 cup Italian bread crumbs
¼ cup Parmesan cheese
2 cloves garlic, pressed
1 large egg
½ cup chicken broth
¼ cup fresh parsley, chopped
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper

Place whole stewing chicken in a large pot. Add enough water to cover. Add salt and pepper, dried onions, parsley, and fresh garlic. Simmer chicken several hours or until it falls off the bones. Remove chicken from the fluid, allowing it to cool. Strain broth. Add vegetables to the chicken broth. Debone the chicken, break into small pieces. Add to the pot. Make tiny meatballs. Brown slightly in olive oil. Add meatballs to the pot. Simmer for 2-3 hours. Add very small pasta during the last 30 minutes of cooking. Sprinkle Parmesan or Romano cheese on top of each bowl of soup.

ANSWER — Sylvia Allgyer, Christiana, wanted a recipe for Chicken Kiev. Thanks to Josephine Matenus for sending a recipe.

Chicken Kiev

2 whole boneless, skinless chicken breasts
½ cup butter, softened
1 teaspoon fresh lemon juice
1 tablespoon fresh parsley, chopped
1 tablespoon fresh chives, chopped
½ cup all-purpose flour
Salt and pepper
1 egg
1 cup bread crumbs
6 cups peanut oil

Cut each chicken breast in half; remove tendons. One at a time, place breast halves between two sheets waxed paper and pound flat.

Combine butter, lemon juice, and herbs. Form into four rolls to fit in middle of each flattened breast half (about 3 inches long). Chill 30 minutes, until firm. Place a roll of butter on each breast half and fold breast half around it, beginning with one long side, then short sides, finishing with a long side like and envelope. Press edges together and roll each piece as it is finished in a sheet of waxed paper. Chill at least one hour while you finish with other preparations. Season flour with salt and pepper. Beat egg lightly with 1 teaspoon water.

Line up plates, one with flour, a shallow dish with beaten egg, and a plate with bread crumbs. One by one, roll each piece in flour to coat, then dip in egg, coating completely, and roll in bread crumbs, pressing crumbs into egg coating.

Place chicken pieces on a tray and refrigerate one hour. Heat peanut oil in a fryer or wok to 350 degrees. Fry chicken pieces, two at a time, in hot oil, until browned evenly and firm to the touch, about 5 minutes.

Cook's Question

ANSWER A mother wanted ideas and recipes to encourage her children to eat more vegetables. Thanks to Ann Shondelmyer, Friedens, for sending many ideas that she has had success with. She writes that when her children were between six months and 3-years, she withheld sweets until they were eating well with fruits, vegetables, meats, and grains. Frozen peas and other small frozen vegetables right out of the bag are enjoyed by small children.

For toddlers and preschoolers, set up an ice cube try of veggie snacks. Make the serving sizes small and colorful. Have fun calling the vegetables creative names such as trees for broccoli. Be sure to stay with small children when they eat raw vegetables to ensure that they chew them thoroughly and don't choke.

Do what you can to sneak vegetables in meals your children love. For example, when making spaghetti sauce, add lots of celery, onion, and green pepper to boost the vegetable content. Add extra celery and onion to stuffing. When baking homemade bread, add leftover cooked vegetables such as winter squash to improve the nutritional content.

Don't become discouraged if your children don't like a certain vegetable. Keep encouraging them to take small serving to try. Ann remembers one of her sons did not like potatoes in any form, but for three years they made him take one bite each time potatoes were served. One day, with a grimace on his face, he took a bite and liked them. Now he eats potatoes in any form.

Remember the tastebuds of children are much more sensitive than the taste buds of an adult. If you add sugar, salt, pepper or butter to vegetable dishes, do so sparingly, as your child will taste these more sharply than you will.

Sometimes cooking a vegetable carefully so that it is on the crunchy side and retains color is more appetizing to a child than a dull slimy vegetable.

Above all be a good example for your children. Serve a variety of vegetables and eat them yourself.

As children go through the stage of losing teeth and gaining molars, their mouths are often sensitive to raw fruits, vegetables and meat. Keep aware of their difficulties and adjust. Last year Ann's daughter had four loose teeth and her molars were coming in. She couldn't chew raw carrots or bite them. Ann cooked the carrots for her, but a year later, her daughter eats raw carrots with no problem.

Here is the recipe Ann used to introduce her children to winter squash.

Squash For Children

2 cups cooked winter squash
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon brown sugar
Dash nutmeg

Mix together and serve warm. As Ann's children grew to like this recipe, she gradually reduced the butter and brown sugar.

One final hint: Grow your own vegetables, freeze and can them. Include your children in the whole process from preparing the soil, planting, weeding, mulching, harvesting, preparing for canning and freezing, labeling jars and bags, etc. The children love to cut off the ends of beans and munch on raw beans as they work. They also love to shuck corn and be involved in all that goes along with freezing corn.

They especially enjoy their own gardens, and are so pleased when something they grew can be served to the family.

Thanks to Debby Goff, Riegelsville, for sending a recipe she received from her sister, Jocelyn Kilgore, Airville, Between the two sisters, they have seven children and some of them learned to like carrots.

Cheesy Carrots

In a buttered casserole, put two pounds carrots that have been cleaned, sliced, and cooked just until tender. Set aside.

In a saucepan, melt one stick butter. Add:

¼ cup milk
4 ounces Velveeta cheese, cubed
4 ounces shredded sharp cheddar cheese

Combine ingredients and cook until cheese melts.

Pour over carrots. Top with cracker or bread crumbs. Bake at 350 degrees for 35-40 minutes.

Green Beans A Snap To Store

Like most fresh vegetables, green beans (or snap beans) are at their highest quality when eaten very soon after being harvested. If there's just too much there to eat at one sitting, cool them immediately. Put the beans in a plastic bag in the refrigerator so they're stored in humid yet cold conditions. This way, their quality shouldn't be too adversely affected for five days or so.

Harvesting the beans at the right time is important, too. To eat them as green beans, they should be picked when they're tender, before the developing seeds cause the pods to bulge. If the beans are allowed to mature fully, the pods can be dried and the developed seeds used in other bean dishes.

Green beans are easy to freeze for use later. For the highest quality, they should be processed and frozen within a few hours after picking. First, remove dirt, bacteria, and any pesticide residue by rinsing the beans thoroughly in cold water several times. Snap the tips off and cut or break into the size you want, or just leave small beans whole. Blanch the beans in boiling water for three minutes. Cool by rinsing again in cold water.

When packaging beans, make sure you use moisture-proof, vapor-proof packaging designed for freezing. Examples are "can or freeze" glass jars, plastic freezing containers, heavyweight aluminum foil, plastic-coated freezer paper, and polyethylene wrap and bags. When using bags, squeeze air from bags before sealing — leaving air in the package can lead to flavor loss and freezer burn. When using rigid containers, leave a half-inch space at the top for expansion.

A half-cup of green beans contains about 20 to 25 calories and is a fair source of vitamins A and C, calcium, iron, potassium and fiber. Seasonings that go well with green beans include basil, dill, marjoram, nutmeg, savory and thyme.

Farm Safety Day Camp

BEAVER SPRINGS (Snyder Co.) — According to the West Snyder FFA Chapter, more than 100 community children recently learned how to identify and deal with hazards on the farm. Held at the Beaver Community Fairgrounds in Beaver Springs, West Snyder FFA Chapter's Progressive Farmer Farm Safety Day Camp drew children between the ages of three to 12 from throughout the community for the day-long event.

Children learned how to take responsibility for their own safety, respect parents' safety rules, and share safety tips with their family and friends, said Cynthia Shaffer, West Snyder FFA co-advisor and coordinator for the event.

A highlight of the day came over the lunch hour when a special visit was made by the Life Flight helicopter from Geisinger Medical Center. The crew from Life Flight landed in the West Snyder Baseball field and explained what they do in an emergency. Campers learned that by wearing their seat belts and the bicycle helmets they received at camp, they would greatly reduce their chances of ever needing Life Flight. After answering questions from the camp participants, the Life Flight visit was cut short by an emergency.

Hands-on experience led by members of the West Snyder FFA Chapter taught camp participants lifetime farm safety lessons. Shaffer said that she hopes that by sharing and applying the lessons learned at camp, participants will help reduce the number of rural children who die or are injured in farm accidents.

Throughout the day, the camp participants rotated throughout 10 safety stations. Each group was led to the stations by members of the West Snyder Jr. High FFA Chapter, Sr. High FFA Chapter, Middleburg Boy Scouts, and local 4-H clubs. The West Snyder Sr. High FFA members conducted the safety presentations for all the safety sessions.

At the Basic First Aid station, FFA members Tiffany Esbenshade and Jenna Briggs explained how to bandage a wound. Each camp participant assembled their own first aid for them to keep. Jenna and Tiffany explained how to use the kit.

At the Chemical Safety station, FFA members Jessica Walter and Elizabeth Hollenbach explained the similarities between household chemicals and certain food and candy products. Camp participants received emergency cards and stickers promoting safety.

At the Gun Safety station, FFA members Hannah Etzler and Daphne Wagner with the assistance of Jeff Mock, Mifflin County Wildlife Conservation Officer from the PA Game Commission taught gun safety. Using the Eddie Eagle curriculum from the National Rifle Association, campers were taught to "stop, don't touch, leave the area, tell an adult," when they see a gun. Mock also explained how to safety handle a gun for the older children. Campers received Eddie Eagle stickers and booklets.

Campers made their own ear plug key chain at the Personal Protective Device station. Chapter members Luke Zerby and Chuck Kessler demonstrated the value of wearing safety glasses, steel-toed shoes, and a hard hat. Each camp participant also received a "Best of Country Music" cassette tape.

At the Bicycle Safety Station, each camper was professionally fitted for their own bicycle helmet. The helmets were donated by the Snyder County Chapter of Lutheran Brotherhood and Selinsgrove Wal-Mart. The North Central Highway Safety Network, Inc. sent a team of three members to fit the bike helmets for each child. Chapter members Derek Fetterolf and Victoria Adams explained bike safety. Each child also had their picture taken with a digital camera and a bike license printed and laminated for them.

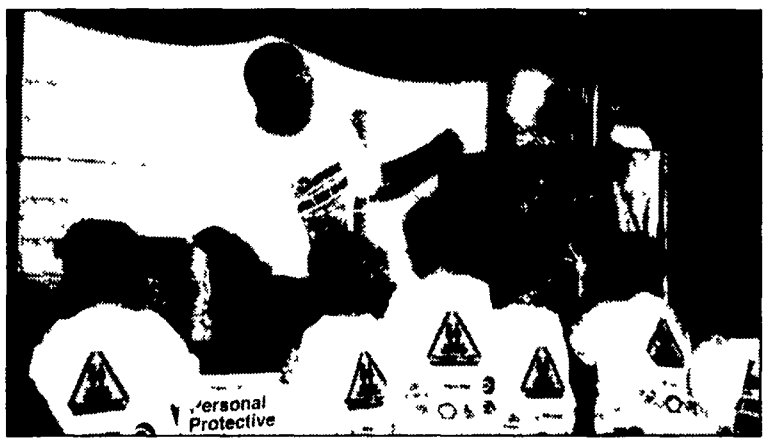
The West Snyder FFA and Progressive Farmer Magazine Farm Safety Day Camp was host to a public relations presentation by Life Flight from Geisinger Medical Center. Camp participants were able to ask questions about the use of Life Flight and see what takes place aboard the helicopter.

Chapter members Travis Catherman and Andrew Kreamer conducted the ATV and Lawn Mower safety session. The participants were able to view the safe and unsafe parts of the equipment. Participants received brochures, erasers, and a Progressive Farmer bag at this station.

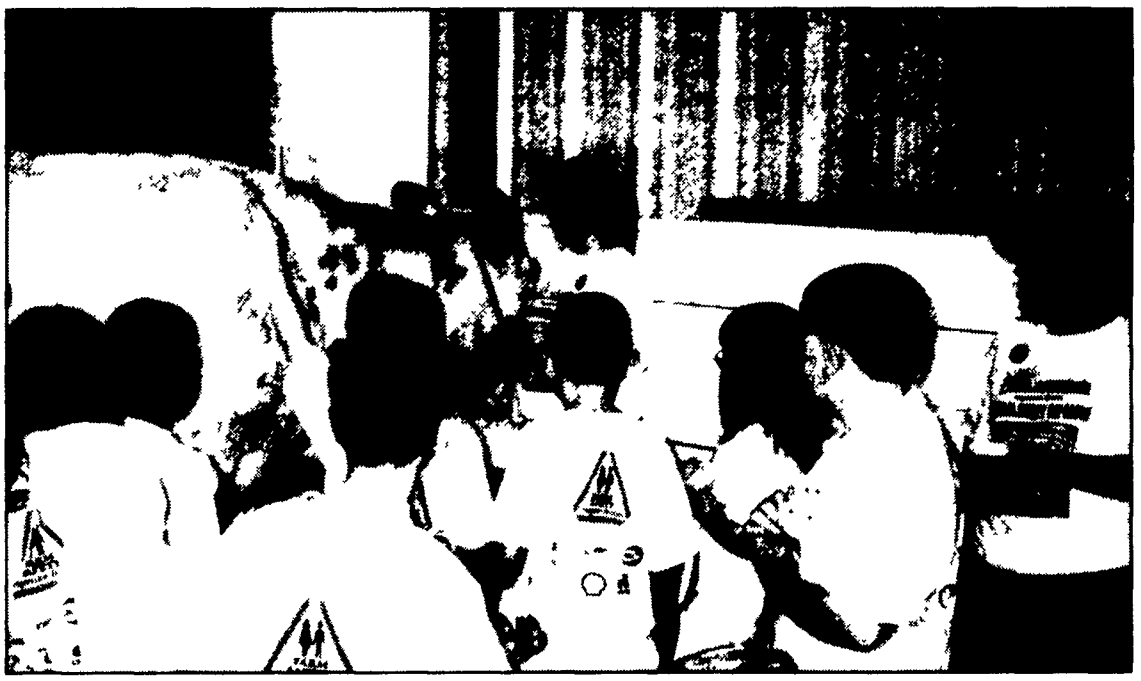
The Water and Sun Safety station was taught by FFA members Heather Hollenbach and Melissa McWilliams. Campers learned to wear life jackets and when to apply sunscreen. They received beach balls, sunscreen samples, and coloring books at this station.

At the Animal Safety station, Jennifer McWilliams taught campers about how to safely approach an animal and how to handle them. Each participant practiced their new skills on a live cow. They received Got Milk stickers, pencils, and cow erasers. At the Fire Safety Station, FFA member Phaedra Wray and the Beavertown Volunteer Fire Company taught campers about what to do in case of a fire. Campers practiced their "stop, drop, and roll" techniques and learned to crawl under smoke. They received coloring books, pencils, and a safety folder.

FFA members Brandon Herman and Daniel Renninger taught the Farm Equipment Station. Using a tractor and hay baler, campers were able to see how difficult it is to see around a tractor when driving. They also learned about safety around the PTO and farm implements. They received a free International Toy Tractor compliments of CB Hoober, Inc. and John Deere Coloring Books, pencils, and lollipops from Deerfield Ag and Turf and Lost Creek Implements.



Luke Zerby, former West Snyder and Pa. FFA association president, demonstrates the importance of wearing personal protective devices at the West Snyder FFA and Progressive Farmer Farm Safety Day Camp recently. Campers saw how their head, hands, and feet could be crushed without proper protection. They also learned the importance of wearing safety glasses.



Jennifer McWilliams, 1999-2000 West Snyder and SUN Area FFA President demonstrated animal safety at the West Snyder FFA and Progressive Farmer Farm Safety Day Camp. Campers learned how to safely approach an animal and how to handle one.

Phaedra Wray, West Snyder FFA member taught the fire safety session at the West Snyder FFA and Progressive Farmer Farm Safety Day Camp recently. Campers learned how to "stop, drop, and roll" if they were on fire and were able to practice their skill. They also learned to crawl under smoke if their House was on fire.

Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser

Summer seems to be the time for reunions. Some are big and some are small. Our family started to have a gathering of about 15 people 50 years ago. This number has now grown to be nearer 70, but only a small number still attend our annual picnic. They are simply too scattered and reach from California to Vermont.

Our first celebrations were in honor of birthdays and took place each year in our meadow along the Conestoga River. At that time, there were many trees along the banks and the sheep kept the grass quite short. Now the floods of recent years have washed the big trees away and the banks are muddy. We children always enjoyed the fire that our father made in the fireplace. These days we meet in a public park and have many conveniences.

My husband's family recently had a big reunion with several hundred in a school. He and three other people spent months preparing for the event. One of the members even had a book on the genealogy of the "Kraybill" family printed after many, many hours of work.

Mugs were sold that had the family crest printed on them and many old pictures were displayed. Long ago a picture was taken of a family reunion and an aunt put a number on each of the hundred some people shown and then named each one on the back of the picture.

I really doubt that today anyone could identify each of the hundreds pictured at a reunion. It seems that we are so busy with our own immediate families that we lose touch with the larger family unless someone takes the trouble to organize a reunion.

During Bug Camp, a group of Milton Hershey School (MHS) elementary school students took an up-close look at some honeybees at work in the campus bee yard. The children assisted Agricultural and Environmental Education (AEE) Instructional Advisor Scott Seibert, AEE student interns Joe Toole and Al-Zahraa Hbaiu, and Honey Crest Farm owner and operator Stuart Mathias as they extracted honey from the hive and processed it for human consumption. The camp was made available to students through the School's Summer of Opportunities Program (SOP). The 10-week SOP offers a variety of week-long camps to students, providing them with personal enrichment, recreational fun, academic preparedness, and career awareness.

Why every fisherman needs these maps

It is estimated that 10% of all the fishermen catch 90% of the fish. Regardless of which group you fall into... there's a sure way to up your odds... simply try new fishing waters. Fish where few fishermen ever fish.

Professor Higbee's Stream Maps are the first and only highly detailed maps of their kind... showing virtually all of the streams, rivers and lakes in each state.

Professor Higbee's® STREAMS

The STREAM MAP OF PENNSYLVANIA was completed in 1965 after a thirty-year effort by Howard Higbee, a former Penn State Professor.

The map is also known as the LOST STREAM MAP to some anglers.

Professor Higbee succeeded in creating a map of the highest detail possible...a map that shows every stream and lake. He painstakingly plotted by hand, the location of 45,000 miles of streams onto a 3 x 5 foot map.

The map sold extremely well -- until it was lost several years later. Incredibly, the printer entrusted with the original drawing and printing plates declared bankruptcy, then carelessly hauled Higbee's 30 years of work to a landfill.

The few remaining dog-eared copies became a prized fisherman's possession. Professor Higbee was offered $400 for one of his last maps. And state agencies were forced to keep their copies under lock and key.

Experts told Professor Higbee that reprints were impossible, because the maps were printed in non-photographic blue.

Then, in 1991, at the age of 91, Howard Higbee's dream came true. Computers made it possible to reprint the map. Holding an updated map, Howard said, "I never thought I'd live to see this day."

Foods That Reduce Cancer Risk

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

SPRINGFIELD (Delaware Co.) — Cancer is a dreaded word among all age groups. The older a person becomes, the more cancer is feared. The longer one lives, the greater the chance of contracting some form of cancer.

Although no guaranteed protection against cancer exists, research shows a solid link between cancer and the foods we eat or don't eat.

In fact, experts believe that 40 percent of cancers in men and 60 percent of cancers in women are partly due to what we eat.

Because the influence of diet is so substantial, the National Cancer Institute (NCI) urges people to choose "5 a Day for Better Health." That means eating five fruits and vegetables every day to lower your risk of contracting certain types of cancer.

NCI scientists found that eating fruits and vegetables protected against cancer in 82 percent of the 156 different studies conducted. People who ate a lot of fruits and vegetables (five servings a day) had one-half the risk of cancer as people who ate few fruits and vegetables.

Fruits and vegetables are found to have a protective effect against cancers such as lung, breast, mouth, throat, stomach, colon, rectal, cervical, and ovarian.

In a recent workshop at the Delaware County Extension, Fran Alloway, registered dietitian, explained the scientific findings behind research in laymen terms, and prepared some recipes for taste-testing to encourage participants to include more fruits and vegetables in their diets.

When examining the reason why fruits and vegetables are good for us, words such as phytochemicals, oxidation, and flavonoids pop up. Here is a short definition for these words:

- Phytochemicals — plant chemicals. An amazing 4,000 phytochemicals have been identified so far, and many more remain to be discovered.
- Flavonols give plants taste, smell, and color.
- Carotenoids add pigment, which also give color to plants.
- Antioxidants — dispose of cell damaging free radicals.
- Carcinogens — potentially cancer-causing substances.

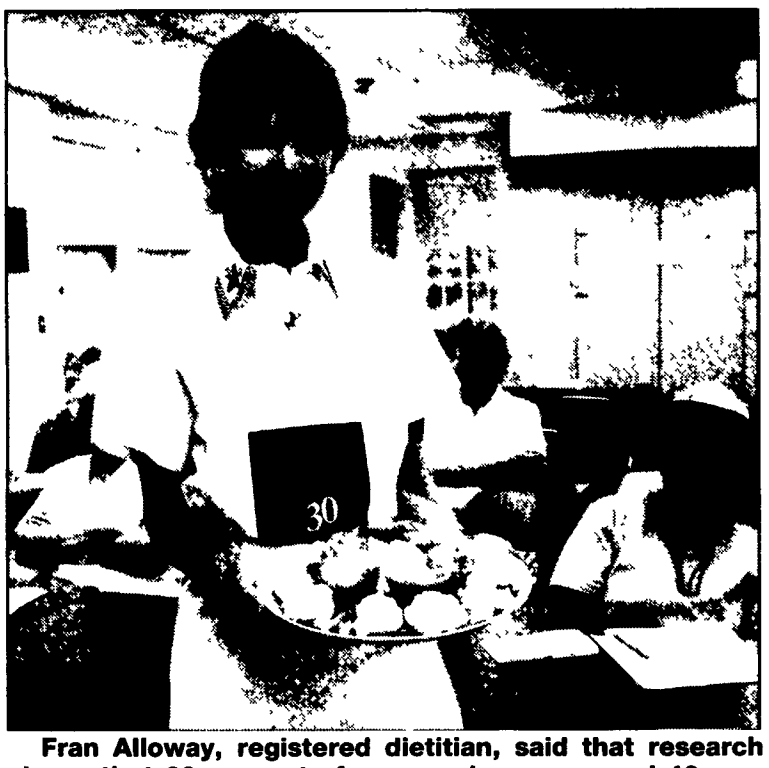
Plants contain natural chemicals called phytochemicals, which are benefical for health. Some of these chemicals block the steps that lead to cancer and destroy chemicals that help cancer cells grow. But no one knows how many phytochemicals we need.

Oxidation is a chemical reaction that causes damage in our bodies and appears to play a role in promoting cancer. Some antioxidants in fruits and vegetables destroy chemicals that help cancer cells grow.

Alloway answered questions that participants had about some foods thought to be particularly beneficial. Some tidbits of information were that garlic in its raw form is best because it loses some of its chemical properties when cooked. Chewing on coffee beans is said to counteract the bad breath that garlic induces.

Although low-fat diets are beneficial in counteracting heart diseases and other health-related problems, Alloway pointed out that some vitamins require fat in order for their properties to be released.

Some foods considered beneficial to women include flax and soy products. Flax contains lignans that are converted to a form of estrogen in the body and are thought to have some protective effect against cancer. Alloway recommends grinding flax seed and sprinkling on food. "Lignans are not found in flaxseed oil," she said.



Fran Alloway, registered dietitian, said that research shows that 60 percent of cancers in women and 40 percent in men are partly due to what we eat.

Soy plant products such as tofu, soy milk, and soybeans are believed to be beneficial in preventing female cancers. Alloway reminded workshop participants that soy-plant protein is incomplete in vegetarian diets and needs to be fortified with B12 vitamins.

A wide variety of fruits and vegetables should be included in diets because different vegetables offer different phytochemicals, but scientists are uncertain exactly what kind and how many of each is needed.

Supplements are not recommended in place of eating fruits and vegetables.

"To get the phytochemicals you need, base your diet on a minimum of five servings a day on a variety of fruits and vegetables and 6-10 servings of whole grains," Alloway said.

Research is on the cutting edge, and scientists have untested theories about how plant chemicals work in our bodies.

For example, a study shows that a link between a high intake of tomato consumption reduces prostrate cancer. Lycopene, plentiful in tomatoes, may be the protective element, but it is not proven.

Although research may change its findings, it is believed that tea, particularly green tea, may reduce the risk of cancers and protect arteries from plaque buildup.

Contact your county Penn State Extension for more information and fact sheets on benefits of eating fruits and vegetables.

GARDENER'S SPECIAL PLATTER

1 pound fresh broccoli, chopped
½ small head cauliflower, broken into pieces
1 medium zucchini, sliced
3 tablespoons butter, melted
½ teaspoon garlic salt
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon dried thyme
2 medium tomatoes, cut into wedges
¼ cup parmesan cheese

On 12-inch glass microwave safe-serving plate, arrange cauliflower and broccoli pieces around edge of plate, placing broccoli with stems toward the edge and alternating with cauliflower. Pile zucchini in center of plate. Cover vegetables with plastic wrap. Microwave on high 9-11 minutes until vegetables are tender. Combine butter, garlic salt, salt, and thyme, and pour over cooked vegetables. Arrange tomato wedges over vegetables. Sprinkle with cheese; microwave uncovered 2 minutes to warm tomatoes.

TRIPLE-PEPPERED SAUSAGE

1 pound fully-cooked smoked turkey sausage (kielbasa)
1 medium green pepper, cut into strips
1 medium red bell pepper, cut into strips
1 banana pepper, seeded, sliced crosswise
1 medium onion, thinly sliced, separated into rings
¼ cup water
1 tablespoon prepared mustard

Cut sausage into 2-inch pieces; slash each piece vertically with a sharp knife to cut through skin and about ¼-inch meat. Place the sausage in a 10x6x2-inch dish. Arrange all peppers and onion rings around and over sausage pieces. Shake together water and mustard and pour over sausage mixture. Cover with plastic wrap and microwave on high 9-11 minutes until sausage is hot and vegetables are tender. Serve as a main course or stuff into sandwich rolls or pita bread. Serves 4-6.

BLUEBERRY COBBLER

2 pints fresh blueberries
1¼ cups sugar
¼ cup corn starch
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon lemon juice
2 cups package biscuit mix
⅔ cup milk
3 tablespoons crushed granola (optional)
Cinnamon and sugar

Place blueberries in 2-3-quart glass casserole dish. Stir together corn starch, sugar, and 1 teaspoon cinnamon; mix well. Stir into blueberries. Microwave on high 4-6 minutes, stirring after 2 minutes and every minute afterwards until blueberries bubble and corn starch mixture becomes translucent.

Combine biscuit mix and milk. Dollop six mounds of mixture over hot fruit. Sprinkle with cinnamon and sugar. Microwave, uncovered, medium-high 4-7 minutes until biscuits are set, rotating dish halfway through cooking. Top with granola if desired. Serve warm with ice cream. Serves 6.

Caught By The Camera At Schnecksville Community Fair

SCHNECKSVILLE (Lehigh Co.) — The Schnecksville Community Fair was held June 19-24 on the fire company grounds in Lehigh County. The overall week had exceptional weather with only one day of rain. A total of 795 exhibitors entered in the various competitive exhibit contests.

Daily entertainment for the week included pig races by Hambone Express, the Farm Experience by Animal Specialties, Masters of the Chain Saw, Tall Tex, Lollipop The Clown, and the Popular "Wanna Be A Farmer" for 3-7 year olds.

Nightly musical entertainment included bands on fair nights plus Linda Lou and the Lucky Four from Virginia and the Marquees, a high energy fifties group on Saturday evening. The fireworks were held on Friday night before a record crowd.

Each year the fair board chooses five individuals to receive the Friends of the Fair Award. This year's honorees include:

• Steve Fetherolf, Fleetwood. There are many volunteers for whom the fair never ends. Steve is one of them. During the cold months of the year, Steve could be found at the fair, assisting in the manufacturing of new animal pens. He is one of the behind the scenes people who works hard each year to ensure that everything is ready and working on opening day. And, when it's time to put the fair to bed, Steve knows from experience, where everything goes.

• Henry Gruber, New Tripoli. As the fair has grown, so has the Premium Book. When the fair needed a larger Premium Book, it was Henry who took it upon himself to find advertisers to help pay the expense of printing the book. With the beginning of each new year, Henry is busy talking with his old friends, and making new ones, to ensure an informative and appealing Premium Book. Thanks to Henry, and his friends the advertisers, this book is possible.

• Herman Handwerk, Schnecksville. Herman wasn't able to help in 1999, but in appreciation of the many hours Herman spent in the ticket booths, this award is presented posthumously. The award was accepted by his wife.

• L. Thomas Kern, Schnecksville. For one week each year, 20 acres of grass becomes a small city with streets, water and electric. It's a task made easier through the generosity of Tommy Kerns and his business NKI. Tommy provides the lifting and material handling equipment that turn an otherwise back-breaking job into one we can handle. During the fair, Tommy can be found working as a volunteer in the Lion's food trailer.

• Keith Stahley, Schnecksville. Keith has been a volunteer at the fair since the beginning. He can be counted on to be first on the scene for setting up and last leaving after everything is torn down and put away. In between he spends all his time running the fire company's dunk tank. Incidentally, this is the second dunk tank at the fair, and Keith built both of them.

Jennifer Rassler, New Tripoli, shows the supreme champion dairy animal.

Bomgardner Family Prepares For Lebanon Fair

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

ANNVILLE (Lebanon Co.) — Ordinary people and little details make community fairs successful.

It's people such as the Bomgardner family that help make Lebanon Area Fair a continuing event.

Leroy helps with the maintenance and Evelyn assists Farm Women Group 15 in the fair kitchen. Daughter Val enters sewing, baking, and fresh vegetables in the competition and sells barbecue tickets and cookies for the 4-H fundraisers.

Fairgoers seldom think of the work involved in the weeklong fair, which runs from today through Aug. 5, but if the work was left undone, it would cause chaos for all.

Think of the restrooms, kept in tiptop shape by Leroy, and the work required to transform the indoor expo center from livestock exhibition to banquet hall. Of course, everybody wants to buy food at the fair, which requires hundreds of volunteers for cooking, serving, and cleanup. If people didn't enter projects, there would be no animal exhibitions or cooking, sewing, baking, and floral displays.

Last year Val won first place in the Hershey's Chocolate Cookie and Brownie contest. She's hoping for a repeat this year.

Val, who loves to sew and cook, is doing her part to keep competition strong. Previous best of show and first-place ribbons inspires her to keep entering. Competition is not limited to the fair.

A few weeks ago, Val has been active in 4-H sewing club for seven years, and won a gold ribbon at Fashion Revue, which qualified her to advance to state competition. Unfortunately, Val can not enter the winning outfit in the Lebanon Fair because the state competition coincides with 4-H State Days.

But that doesn't mean Val won't have a project for the Lebanon Fair. She sewed a dress for her niece that she is entering. She used the same pattern for the dress that is in state competition.

Val said that the dress style follows a simple pattern. She thinks the leopard print is what appealed to the judges at the regional competition.

"I'm crazy over leopard prints," she said.

The Bomgardners moved off the farm within the last year so that Leroy could devote more time to the pastorate, but their involvement in ag-related activities continue.

Valerie, who turned 18 on the last day of school and graduated, has two part-time jobs in addition to helping her married sister, who is recuperating from cancer treatment.

Although Val has shown cattle in the past, she will not be showing this year. However, she is busy baking for the Hershey Chocolate Cookie contest. She's hoping for the same success last year, when she won first place.

Leroy and Evelyn Bomgardner and daughter Val recently moved off their dairy farm, but continue to participate in agriculture events.

Here is the recipe that she is entering.

TELEPHONE BARS

1 cup chopped dates
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 cup boiling water
½ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons baking cocoa
1½ cups flour
1 cup chocolate chips (optional)

In a small bowl, pour boiling water over chopped dates and baking soda. Mix and cool. Cream sugar and shortening. Add eggs, vanilla, salt, and cocoa. Stir in flour, alternating with the date mixture, beat well. Spread in a greased 9x13-inch pan. Sprinkle chocolate chips on top. You may substitute ½ cup whole wheat flour for a ½ cup of white flour. Bake at 350 degrees for 30-35 minutes.

The friend who gave me this recipe said that every time she served it, the guests telephoned the next day for the recipe.

4-H HAPPENINGS

Green Grove Community 4-H Club

"Hook, line and sinker"... "flash in the pan"..."the one that got away"..."when the smoke clear." Do all these phrases really belong in the same paragraph?

They do when you're talking about the recent Fishing Fun Day hosted by the Green Grove Community 4-H Club.

The June 26 event was combined with a muzzle loading rifle project meeting at the Welch Family farm near Starucca. The farm proved to be the perfect location for club members and their families to experience just what 4-H is all about.

Participants were afforded opportunities to share expertise, learn by doing, gain and practice new skills, spend precious family time, and strive in healthy competition — all in an environment rich in respect for wildlife, property, safety, and others.

The environment at the muzzle-loading range (created by a natural ridge line) was one of careful control, strict adherence to rules, and close supervision by Project Leader John Sherman (aided by several other adult coaches.) Participants also learned the cause and proper response to a real "flash in the pan." When the smoke had cleared and targets were examined, shooters were elated to find that discipline and practice were paying off: skills were improving.

At those well-stocked ponds, there was also much exuberance, especially from David Sarber, 8-year-old winner of the prize for most fish caught (a whopping 88)! The largest catch of the Fishing Fun Day was a 19½-inch Walleye made by Mark Musser. Mark, age 17, also claimed the prize for most species caught — his bounty included Bluegill, Perch, Walleye, and Bass.

Mark was most thrilled by the 19½-inch Walleye, caught literally seconds before time was officially called to end the contest. With that "last second" snatch, Alan Bibalo's 19-inch Walleye slid to second place for the largest. Undaunted, Alan (age 13) was happy to claim the prize for the largest Bluegill (eight-inches). Adam Sickler, age 10, and Mark Musser tied for catching the largest perch (nine-½-inches), while Ruben Rodriguez, 10, took the prize for the largest Bass at 16-inches. Fernanda Rodriguez, age 13, landed the largest bullhead of the day (13-inch) before heading off to the muzzle loading range to provide some tough competition for the male shooters.

Following a very full morning of working hard at having fun, the Fun Day participants enjoyed a brief rest and picnic lunch.Even Fishing Project leader Larry Winkler was forgiven the oversight of forgetting his fishing pole as he cleaned and packaged the members' huge catch.

Irish Hill Shamrocks 4-H Club

The third meeting of the Irish Hill Shamrocks was called to order by vice president, Chantal Birchard. The pledge to the flag was led by Liz Holbert. The 4-H pledge was led by Melissa Zamorski.

Members paid dues and talked about who would give money and how we would raise it. Achievement Days is Aug. 1-3 at Penn State.

Dimock Community 4-H Club

The Dimock Community 4-H Club has been involved in some great community service projects. In March, the club had planted flower seeds. Now that they are grown, members planted them around the Dimock Community Church building and post office.

At their latest meeting, members reported on litter pickups. One boy told of finding half a pencil, and farther on, the other half.

Three interesting project demonstrations were given. One was about how to plant a garden, another boy showed members the clown he had made, and yet another told about learning your dog's behavior.

The kids sang happy birthday to two members.

Born To Show 4-H Club

At the Born To Show 4-H Club's, meetings pledges were said and the treasure's report read. Ben Hoover and Justin Garner talked about the dairy judging contest in New York on June 29.

Aug. 1-3 is State Achievement Days at Penn State. There will be a cleanup at the Harford Fairgrounds. Dairy books must be completed at roundup.

Acre Lake 4-H Club

On June 15, the Acre Lake 4-H Club went to Shadowbrook in Tunkhannock. Some members went bowling and played pool. The next meeting will be at Lackawanna State Park.

Vermont Tour Enjoyed By Area 4-H Clubs

More than 90 4-H'ers and their families enjoyed two beautiful, fun-packed days in Vermont July 11-12. The trip organized by Penn State Cooperative Extension office manager Evie Goff began with a tour of Howe Caves, in Cobelskill, N.Y.

Members and families toured the caves and learned how they were formed and even got to take a boat ride 150-feet below the ground in 42-degree water. Some kids went Gem Stone mining and came up with such treasurers as rubies, garnets, crystal, and emeralds.

From there it was onto Burlington, Vt. for a two-hour sunset cruise on Lake Champlain upon a 500-passenger luxury cruise ship. 4-H members were thrilled when the captain let each of them navigate the boat. After a full day, it was back to the hotel for dinner and swimming.

The next morning kids and families made a delectable stop at the world famous Ben and Jerry's manufacturing plant in Waterbury, Vt. After a 10-minute film explaining Ben and Jerry's remarkable history, the tour continued to the production plant. Members and families got to see the making of the ice cream from beginning to end.

Everyone was amazed to hear that in one day, this plant makes 180,000 pints of ice cream. From there it was onto the tasting room. Samples of "Cherry Garcia" and "Half Baked" were enjoyed by all.

After boarding the buses, it was onto the Green Mountain Flyer scenic train ride. Members relaxed as the train snaked through 26 miles of beautiful Vermont scenery. The restored coaches traveled through Brockways Mills Gorge and over two covered bridges.

With everyone getting a full dose of Vermont culture, it was back home to Pennsylvania.

Cumberland Countywide 4-H Dairy Club

The Cumberland Countywide 4-H Dairy Club meeting was July 10 at the Kulicks, Carlisle. President Thomas Harwood called the meeting to order at 7:30 p.m.

Under old business, Donald Harwood reported on how the judging team did on Saturday at the regional contest. Melissa Detman placed 10th in the junior division for the senior division, Scott Walton placed third, Amy Kaucher placed eighth, Sarah Day placed fourth, and Aaron Corman placed ninth.

Also under old business, Amy Kaucher reported how the junior division team and the senior team did at the regional dairy bowl contest. The junior team placed fifth and the senior team placed first. The junior team was made up of Melissa Detman, Sarah Wickard, and Ian Stamy. The senior team was made up of Brian Nailor, Amy Kaucher, Michael Woods, and Zach Travis.

Harwood also asked everyone that went to speak-out night to stand and tell how they did. Amy Kulick did a speech on "Future Concerns of Dairy Farming" and she received a blue, Mark Fulton and Aaron Corman did a speech on "Farm Safety" and they received a blue, Sonya Ricker did a radio spot and a demonstration on "Dairy Farming vs. Beef Farming" and she received a blue, Amy Kaucher did a radio spot and a demonstration on "Johnne's Disease" and she received blue for both, Joe Arnold did a radio spot and he received a blue and Morgan Creek did a demonstration on "What is Milk Anyway?" and he received a blue. Melissa Detman did a radio spot and a demonstration on "Safety Handling Animals" and she received blue for both.

Under new business, Thomas made sure everyone had a new calendar for July and August. Thomas also reminded everyone of State Days and to check with their coaches to be sure they were signed up. John Ocker reminded everyone about the concession stand at the Holstein Show on Aug. 12.

After new business was done, Timothy Blasco gave a demonstration on schizophrenia, Tori Fuller gave a demonstration on an interview conducted with a veterinarian, and Brian Nailor gave a demonstration on the interview he did with a farmer. The program was identifying grain and forage.

The 4-H Dairy Roundup is Aug. 4-5 at Shippensburg Fairgrounds. The next meeting is Sept. 11.

Berks 4-H Beef

Members of the Berks County 4-H Beef Club conducted their annual summer field day recently at Brubaker Angus at Forge Hollow Farm. The farm is owned and operated by Ken and Ginger Brubaker along with their 9-year-old son, Clay.

The Brubaker's operation consists of a 40-head purebred Angus cow-calf herd.

The Brubakers hope to produce a productive herd through line-breeding and strict culling. They want their cows to be angular with sound udders, with fleshing ability, strong maternal instinct, sound feet and legs, and their females must breed back regularly every year.

Their herd bulls also have a simple yet vital expectation that they must live up to. They are expected to produce females that equal and exceed their mothers. Right now, Brubaker Angus is introducing a new herd sire OCC Galileo 754G.

"He combines a sound phenotype, moderate frame size, fleshing ability, and maternal function to produce the next generation of efficient females," said Brubaker. Two other herd sires that the Brubakers are using are Irvington Vindicator 1066 and WRA Yogi F3.

The 30 4-H Beef Club members and their families toured the Brubaker family's intensive grazing program. In this program, the Brubakers keep their herd in a small paddock of a large pasture and rotate the herd from paddock to paddock as the cattle eat the grass, ideally every two to three days. The pastures are a blend of orchard grass, alfalfa, clover, and fescue. There is no creep feed offered to their calves. They are strictly raised off their mother's milk and grass until they are weaned around 205 days of age, according to Brubaker.

The heifers weaned in the fall that will be used as replacement heifers are fed a low energy ration for three months and then are given high quality hay to proceed with their development until they are again turned out on pasture in the spring. The cows are also fed hay in the winter, reinforcing the importance of being able to convert efficiently the hay forage into energy.

Following the pasture walk, there was a judging clinic where members, along with Ken Brubaker, a Berks County livestock judging coach, discussed a class of steers. After the judging clinic, there was a showmanship clinic. Club members learned the proper ways to present their steers and heifers, along with themselves, in the show

Maryland DHIA Report For June

The June Dairy Herd Improvement information for dairy herds from the DHI processing center in Provo, Utah. The list includes herds from Maryland, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia. The information is listed by herd name, county association, number of cows in the herd and the average production per cow in the herd based on Energy Corrected Milk (ECM). ECM combines milk production and components.

The ECM formula is: (7.2 x lbs. protein) + (12.95 x lbs. fat) + (.327 x lbs. milk). To be included, the herd must have 10 cows averaging 65 pounds or more of ECM per cow, per day. All herds reported are on official DHI or DHIR test. Also listed are the top ten herds in Maryland for the Brown Swiss, Guernseys, and Jerseys, and the top seven herds for Ayrshires.

Livestock Breed Conservation Program Honored

PITTSBORO, N.C. — The American Livestock Breeds Conservancy recognized the important breed conservation work by Richard Nicoll of the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation's Coach and Livestock Department.

The Century Conservation Award was presented by the ALBC board of directors to Nicoll for his work in promoting and conserving several endangered breeds of livestock and bringing the issue before the public within the context of the mission of the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation.

Farm animals have long been part of the Williamsburg experience. But when Richard arrived 15 years ago, the livestock program was low profile and little research had gone into the selection of livestock breeds.

He began to research 18th century material and compiled a list of breeds that would be appropriate for the time period.

Nicoll initiated a cattle program based on the Milking Devon for dairying and oxen work. This year you can even find a Devon beef roast sizzling on the spit in the Governor's Palace kitchen. He encouraged staff to do the research and to pursue the purchase of an American Cream Draft horse for the carriage program, and later the Canadian breed was added.

Nicoll improved the sheep program from using phenotypical sheep to genotypical sheep with the arrival of the Leicester Longwools, and essentially reintroduced the breed into North America. The poultry program has expanded to four historic chicken breeds, and there are plans to add turkeys and pigeons in the near future.

The historic rare breeds dramatically increased the interpretive potential and provided the opportunity to discuss rare breeds, the 18th century agricultural revolution, Robert Bakewell's pioneering livestock breeding techniques, and the changing livestock industry around the world.

Williamsburg's fields and barns could have more easily been populated with more modern and common breeds. It would have saved time and money to use artificial insemination on the rare horses, sheep, and cattle, to avoid road trips to obtain new animals, and to move breeding groups. Yet the rare breeds have paid back the investment by providing interesting topics to discuss, beautiful animals to show visitors, and the feeling that Williamsburg is helping these vulnerable breeds to survive.

Colonial Williamsburg's conservation, study, and display of material culture is known and copied throughout the museum world. Thanks to Nicoll's vision and guidance, the livestock program is also well known in the museum world. He encourages other museum and living history sites to use rare breeds to enhance their mission. He is fond of saying he wants to make the rare breeds program so popular that it will continue long after he leaves Colonial Williamsburg.

Nicoll's contribution to rare breeds conservation has been invaluable, while at the same time enriching the experience of visitors to Colonial Williamsburg.

Santorum, Donaldson Urge Repeal Of Death Tax

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. Sen. Rick Santorum and Guy F. Donaldson, president of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, urged the U.S. Senate to repeal the "unfair estate," better known as the "death tax." Both leaders made their statements at a news conference here recently.

"Perhaps no section of the tax code is more unfair and more of a direct hit on entrepreneurship and the ethic of savings than the death tax," said Santorum as he pledged support for its repeal.

Donaldson, leader of the 28,000-member farm organization, said, "Many times Pennsylvania farm family heirs are forced to sell their farms to meet the financial demands of the 'death tax' following the death in the family. It's a situation where nobody really gains anything, except government, which collects a tax that virtually eliminates a farm family business."

The House passed The Death Tax Elimination Act (H.R. 8) with a near veto-proof vote (279-136). The House-approved legislation repeals death taxes by the year 2010. The legislation retains assets (up to $5.6 million) on a stepped-up basis when the tax is repealed in 2010.

The stepped-up amount would be indexed to increase automatically with the inflation rate. All estate sizes would retain stepped-up basis assets of $1.3 million. If an estate were larger than $1.3 million, the heirs could choose which assets retain the stepped-up basis.

There would be an additional $3 million of assets eligible for stepped-up basis on estate transfers between spouses, bringing the total value of stepped-up basis assets in such transfers up to $4.3 million.

The legislation also reduces all estate tax rates by about 15 percent over 10 years and lowers the bottom effective rate from 37 percent to 18 percent. The top rate is cut from 55 to 53 percent in 2001 and to 50 percent in 2002. All rates are reduced by a percent in 2003-2006, by 1.5 percent in 2007, and by 2 percent in 2008-2009. The unified credit is changed to an exemption in 2001, which lowers the bottom estate tax rate from 37 percent to 18 percent.

The Pennsylvania congressional delegation vote on the legislation split along party lines with Republicans favoring and Democrats opposing the legislation. Most Democrats are supportive of alternative legislation that would address elimination of estate taxes for family-owned businesses. Passage is questionable, and the Senate legislation is expected to mirror the House version.

While U.S. Senator Santorum supports estate tax elimination, U.S. Senator Specter is undecided. President Clinton has threatened to veto the House passed measure.

Reaching New Heights Depths

Why is the DMI ecolo-til 2500 with No-Till shanks from Hoober becoming the ideal tillage tool for achieving greater yield and profit potential? Because the DMI ecolo-til 2500 breaks through the hardpan unlike conventional tillage tools. The result? The DMI ecolo-til 2500 with patented tiger-points provides excellent fracture of compaction to increase water absorption and air exchange for better nutrient flow up and down the soil profile and root system. This process provides warmer soil in the spring for earlier planting plus it delivers more uniform crop germination. And using the DMI ecolo-til 2500 with No-Till shanks results in even less soil disturbance than other deep tillage shanks.

The DMI ecolo-til 2500 Advantage

- Controls Compaction
- Increases Water Absorption and Air Exchange
- Provides Warmer Soil in Spring for Earlier Planting
- Achieves More Uniform Crop Germination
- Greater Yield and Profit Potential

Big Baler Features On A Smaller Scale

New Idea® 4844 and 4845 Round Balers.

Want the same features as the larger New Idea round balers? Then check out the big features on the New Idea 4844 (4'x4') and 4845 (4'x5') round balers. Like big balers, an open-throat design gives you efficient hay pickup and faster bale starts. The optional hydraulic-drive pickup maximizes crop flow and gentle crop movement.

The New Idea fixed chamber design creates a dense outer shell around a soft breathable inner core. Wide, endless belts handle leaves and other material genetly, so more nutritious leaves end up in the bale.

Visit your AGCO® New Idea dealer today to discover the difference the 4844 and 4845 can make on your baling and on your budget.

Deere Group Wins For Tractor

MILWAUKEE, Wis. — On July 12, the John Deere 4700 Compact Utility Tractor was honored with an AE50 Award by Resource: Engineering and Technology for a Sustainable World.

The award was presented to the John Deere Commercial Products Group at the 13th Annual ASAE Annual International Meeting in Milwaukee, Wis.

Agco Breaks Ground At HFI

ATLANTA, Ga. — Agco Corporation (NYSE: AG), a major worldwide designer, manufacturer, and distributor of agricultural equipment, broke ground in May at the Hay and Forage Industries manufacturing facility in Hesston, Kan., now owned by Agco.

The 120,000 square-foot facility will be used to accommodate Gleaner and Massey Ferguson combine production being moved from an Independence, Mo. facility to its new home in Kansas.

Before Agco purchased the balance of Hay and Forage Industries in May, Agco and Case Corp. (now CNH) have owned HFI 50/50 since 1991. Agco originally purchased a half interest from the previous Case-Fiat joint venture. HFI has been the manufacturing operation for both the Hesston brand of hay tools marketed by Agco and the Case Corp. brand being marketed by CNH.

The expansion takes place on property already owned by HFI and used for product storage. "HFI has been a strong manufacturing, engineering and product development arm for hay equipment," said Chuck Miller, general manager for Hay and Forage Industries. "Now we will showcase our abilities with combines, planting, and other equipment."

He said that the purchase by Agco should benefit both producers and Agco brand dealers with continuing innovation and increased productivity.

In addition to the Hesston hay tool line and combine production, HFI will also produce New Idea hay and spreader tools, White planters, and other components.

Hesston equipment will be a major component of the plant's production mix, said Ron Hess, Agco director of marketing-harvesting, "The Hesston technology is truly unique," he said. "It has led the industry in many areas — the first self-propelled windrower, first hydro-swing mower, first large square baler, and first open-throat design in round balers.

"Many of these innovations have become industry standards to help producers improve productivity and make better quality hay. Now, we can focus all our efforts on continuing this tradition."

The addition of Gleaner combines locates production just miles from where three Kansas brothers originally began the business. "Gleaner's commitment to quality will be further strengthened by its move to HFI," said Tom Draper, general marketing manager for Gleaner. "We will continue our full line of rotary and conventional combines that have proven successful for producers over the years."

The move is likewise for Massey Ferguson combines. According to Verlin Tinder, general marketing manager for MF combines, the switch to HFI is positive. "The innovative MF combines will be manufactured in a world-class facility, one that has achieved ISO 9001 standards," said Tinder (ISO 9001 is an independent assessment of a company's quality assurance program that measures management systems to deliver specific quality criteria.)

HFI will also be home for new production for both the White planter line and New Idea hay and spreader tools. Joe Bozung, general marketing manager for White planters said, "The HFI facility is an excellent location to manufacture our new series of White planters. With new row units and other improvements, White planters will be positioned well at HFI to serve our dealers and customers."

Farmers Union Says Boehner, Lugar Bill Misses Out On True Ag Reform

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Farmers Union (NFU) recently reacted to legislation introduced by Rep. John Boehner, R-Ohio, and Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., that seeks to address shortcomings in federal farm policy.

"We appreciate Rep. Boehner and Sen. Lugar's recognition that Freedom to Farm is not working," said NFU President Leland Swenson. "We are disappointed this legislation does not address the biggest problem facing our nation's farmers and ranchers: low prices. It does not promote rural development. It does not promote fair competition. It leaves intact a Freedom to Farm law that is the true obstacle to providing prosperity to family farmers and ranchers."

The bill, called the Rural America Prosperity Act (RAPA), proposes to "fulfill the promises of Freedom to Farm" through a program of tax breaks, income investment risk management tools, regulatory exemptions, and trade edicts. It maintains the basic policy of the 1996 farm legislation that has led to the current price crises, escalating agriculture industry concentration, and the economic depletion of America's rural areas.

"We agree with the bill's sponsors that rural America has missed out on the prosperity enjoyed by other sectors of the economy," said Swenson. "We think that some provisions of this bill could provide needed assistance. However, without significant changes that influence price, competitive markets and a safety net, these proposals are false solutions to the real problems facing the family-sized operation."

Farmers Union advocates policy change that repeals Freedom to Farm, ensures open and competitive markets, strengthens and enforces antitrust laws, and establishes fair trade.

FMC To Launch New Soybean Herbicide For 2001

PHILADELPHIA — FMC Corporation will launch a new preemergence soybean herbicide under the trade name Gauntlet™.

On June 16, Gauntlet was registered by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

The new herbicide combines sulfentrazone, the active ingredient in Authority™ herbicide, and cloransulam-methyl, the active ingredient in FirstRate* herbicide manufactured by Dow Agrosciences.

"These products compliment each other very well," said Mike Steffeck, Gauntlet product manager. "Sulfentrazone provides excellent control of weeds like waterhemp, nightshade, lambsquarters and nutsedge while cloransulam-methyl is outstanding on giant ragweed, cocklebur, and wild sunflower. Together, Gauntlet will control a wider spectrum of broadleaf weeds than any other preemergence soybean herbicide on the market.

"Soybean growers have always wanted a simple one pass approach to weed control. When combined with a grass herbicide like Treflan*, Pendimax* or Command®, Gauntlet will provide season-long control of grasses and broadleaves in one preemergence application. Furthermore, Gauntlet can be applied to all soybeans regardless of soil type, soil pH or corn rotation," Steffeck noted.

Sulfentrazone is a protoporphyrinogen oxidase (PPO) inhibitor and cloransulam-methyl is an acetolactate synthase (ALS) inhibitor. The two active ingredients work together to control weeds as they emerge by blocking the enzymes needed for the production of chlorophyll and inhibiting the synthesis of amino acids.

Lugar, Boehner Introduce Legislation To Fulfill Farm Bill Promises

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. Sen. Dick Lugar, chairman of the Senate Agriculture, Nutrition and Forestry Committee, and Rep. John Boehner (R-OH) introduced legislation to increase farmers' competitiveness by opening foreign markets, providing tax and regulatory relief, and expanding risk management options for farmers.

"This bill is about improving net farm income. It will provide farmers the tools to increase income and build on the existing farm safety net. Farmers will get tax relief from deductibility for health insurance — so they have the same benefits as other workers — capital gains and estate tax relief and the ability to average out income in high and low years. The bill would also open up foreign markets and reduce regulatory burdens on farmers," Lugar said.

"Many of the provisions were included in the tax bill that passed Congress — but was vetoed by the President — last year. In fact, many of them were voted on in the last week as part of the estate tax and marriage penalty tax bills," Lugar said. "These taxes cut into a farmer's bottom line. Lower taxes and increased trade are essential to increasing farmers' net income."

Lugar and Boehner introduced the Rural America Prosperity Act of 2000 to address the needs of American farmers in the areas of tax relief, trade, risk management, and regulatory reform. Senators Pat Roberts (R-KS) and Rick Santorum (R-PA) are cosponsors of the bill.

Highlights of the legislation are:

- Health care insurance cost deduction for self-employed. Allows for the immediate full deduction of health care insurance premiums for farmers and the self-insured.
- Capital gains. Provides a $500,000 exclusion ($250,000 for a married couple filing separately) from capital gains taxes on the sale of a farm.
- Income averaging. Ensures that farmers are not disqualified from using income averaging due to the alternative minimum tax (AMT) calculation.
- Farm, Fish and Ranch Risk Management (FFARRM) accounts. Allows farmers to deduct up to 20 percent of their taxable net farm income and put it aside in a tax-free account for up to five years, allowing farmers to smooth out volatile income streams and minimize risks.
- Estate tax. Phases out the estate and gift tax during a 10-year period.

Metal Roofing & Siding

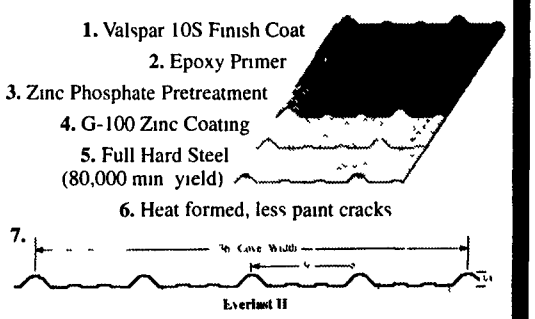
The Ultimate G-100 Process

"The Best"



1. Valspar 10S Finish Coat
2. Epoxy Primer
3. Zinc Phosphate Pretreatment
4. G-100 Zinc Coating
5. Full Hard Steel (80,000 min yield)
6. Heat formed, less paint cracks
7.
Everlast II

NOTE! It is more important what is under the paint than what you see on top!

1. One of the best paints, superior acid rain, cracking resistance and color retention.
2. Primer coat: promotes outstanding top coat adhesion.
3. Zinc phosphate pretreatment. This is a very important process - if your current supplier cannot supply you with this or does not know, you should reconsider.
4. G-100 Galvanized: Most metal roofing has approx. 40% less galvanized under the paint. G-100 is more galvanized than most unpainted panels.
5. Full Hard: Anything less than full hard will bend easier, lower snow loads, etc.
6. Heat formed: Metal is painted before ribs are formed. Most paint cracks at bends, heat forming greatly reduces cracks. (check metal siding that is installed for 5-10 years).
7. Stronger design, superior strength, more metal per L.F.
8. Add Everything Together And Price Should Be $53.37 Per Square $1 69 Per L.F.

OUR SPECIAL PRICE ONLY
$46.74 PER SQUARE
$1.48 PER LINEAL FT.

 Benefits of Fiberglass Wheels ***

Fiberglass Wheels

- Very Low Maintenance Costs Under normal use the only maintenance costs will be tightening or replacing the tire or rubber. No expensive parts to replace.
- High Performance Regardless of the Elements Wheels stay tight even in hot, dry conditions – No more loose rattling spokes – ever!
- Rugged Heavy Duty Design It takes a major accident or impact to break or twist these wheels.
- Hard Durable Surface Resists scuffs and scratches, paint job stays shinier.
- Easier Cleaning Spokes have all rounded corners, no tight spots for dirt to get into.

 Benefits of Fiberglass Springs ***

Fiberglass Springs

- Lightweight A fiberglass spring weighs 22 lbs. less than a steel spring. 44 lbs. less weight on the carriage.
- Durable One Piece Design No bolts to give out or wear.
- Better Performance on Heavy Loads The more weight, the better the ride, will not go flat and bounce out.
- Added Relief Absorption Easier cleaning – no dirt traps running out between the plys. Paint will not blister or peel off.
- Available Kits – Wheels, Axles, Springs, Hardware and Seat Bounce

Install these wheels and springs on your next new carriage or replace your old ones.

Attention
Dairy, Swine & Poultry Producers!

New Products Now Available...

With the addition of our new soybean processing facility, we now offer these products to meet your nutritional needs. Manufacturing these products ourselves allows us to utilize locally grown soybeans and support our local agricultural community!

GOLDEN PRO 46 XP

This natural, mechanically extruded and expelled soybean product is experiencing great acceptance with local dairymen. A course golden colored meal with a 6% fat content, Golden Pro 46 XP is extremely palatable. Golden Pro 46 XP is a natural way to bring the value of high by-pass protein into diets that require a lower fat level.

GOLDEN MEAL 40

An 18 percent fat content along with a 40 percent crude protein makes this mechanically extruded meal product a valuable component in a variety of rations. Full fat content gives you a high level of digestible energy, while high temperature extruding ruptures the oil cells for better nutritional absorbtions.

CRUDE SOYBEAN OIL

A product of Keystone's expelling process, this oil can be used in a wide variety of on farm applications. A natural alternative to animal fats, this oil provides needed energy in various rations.

To make these products available, and to help you utilize your home raised soybeans Keystone Mills announces its

Soybean Exchange Program

As manufacturers and distributers of Golden Pro 46 XP and Golden Meal 40, we are anxious for you to try our products. We are offering a soybean exchange program featuring these quality nutritional products.

James & Sue Younkers

First impressions are very important to James and Sue Younkers of Fleetwood. That's why they work hard to keep Kirbyville Holsteins looking nice and clean. The Younkers and their two children Andy and Joel live on the 86-acre farm they purchased five years ago. They milk 65 Holstein cows and have 60 to 65 heifers. Corn, barley, and hay are raised on the farm. After purchasing the farmstead, the Younkers worked together to clean everything up and make it into the successful operation it is today.

Ben & Dean Jackson

Ben and Regina Jackson, along with their son Dean and his wife Rebecca, farm the 565-acre farm in Columbia Crossroads. Called Mt. Glen Farms, the farm is home to 85 milk cows and 105 replacement animals. They grow corn, alfalfa, and grass hay. According to Ben, image is very important to the Jacksons. They work hard to create a positive environment that will encourage people to drink milk when they see it. The Jacksons also are very active in showing and merchandising cattle. Their herd sports a breed adjustment average of 108.

His Kids Goat Farm

H. Paul and Joyce Hail from Wyalusing are the first goat farmers to earn the Dairy of Distinction title in Pennsylvania. Milking 30 goats and raising 40 kid goats on their 45-acre farm, the Hails are glad they can raise their four children, Zachary, Kaitlin, Kara, and Jacob, on the farm. The Hails have a raw milk license and currently sell their milk to neighbors who come to the farm. However, they have purchased all of the equipment to pasteurize their milk and hope to be able to sell pasteurized milk to urban nearby grocery stores. They also make goat cheese and fudge. The Hails purchased the farm five years ago after moving from Bucks County to get out of suburbia.

Mike Tierney

18-year-old Mike Tierney of Upper Makefield farms this 65-acre farm, which has been in his family since 1943. He milks 12 Jersey cows and has three heifers. One of the cows holds the state record for Jerseys in milk production at 36,107 pounds with 4.8 percent fat and 3.8 percent protein. Mike grazes his herd and feeds them a pelleted feed, which he and his father, a veterinarian, formulated using all-natural feeds. The milk is sold on farm through a raw milk license as milk, ice cream, cheese, butter, and pudding.

Moniot Farm

Ken and Ann Moniot own this 250-acre farm in Portersville. The Moniots and their two children, Bob and Stacy, feel blessed to have excellent soils and a good herd of cows. They milk 75 cows and have 20 heifers. They also raise corn, hay, and oats. When Ken was in third grade, his parents sided their house with stainless steel siding to prevent it from rusting. To this day, the house still has the stainless steel siding, making it a unique feature in the farm's landscape.

S.I. FEEDERS

Designed To Minimize Feed Loss!

This is done with functional slant bars, low set design, proper pan depth, feed saving edges, and other concepts to reduce waste.

The S.I. Feeder Wagons have the versatility to feed any type of grain, forage, or even a total mixed ration. Four foot high inserts are options to increase load capacity and to control the downward flow of feed.

The Arrow Front design replaces the old gooseneck concept, eliminating 90 degree welded joints, making it stronger and more durable.

Get an S.I. Feeder now to get maximum efficiency of your quality feeds.

Telescoping pole, axle, and tires can make any length Full Size or Mid Size bunk portable. This makes it easier to select-feed smaller groups of cattle. Tires and specially designed legs make moving it easier, year-round. Heavy steel pan is formed in one piece on all bunks for strength and economy.

LUCK//NOW MIXER FEEDERS "P" SERIES

Since 1979 LUCK//NOW Mixer Feeders have been recognized as one of the most dependable and strongest built mixers in the field.

To enhance its existing line of Mixer Feeders LUCK//NOW introduces the "P" Series of Mixer Feeders with six models ranging in size from the Model 300 with a mixing capacity of 310 cubic ft., to the Model 900 with a mixing capacity of 900 cubic ft.

The large diameter augers in all the "P" Series Mixer feeders are capable of giving the mix required, from rations with well cured, long stemmed legume-type hay, to mixes with green grass, and mixes with silage and commodities. Better milk production, better weight gains and greatly improved animal health are just some of the results of a finely-tuned feed ration.

J. Kenneth & Lisa Wiker

J. Kenneth and Lisa Wiker of Holtwood own this 75-acre, second generation dairy operation. They milk 82 head of Holsteins. J. Kenneth and Lisa have lived on the farm for 12 years. However J. Diane Walton Neyhard

Star-Tover Farm is owned by Diane Walton Neyhard from Milton. She and her son Jim operate the 117-acre farm, where they milk 14 cows. The farm was purchased by Neyhard and her husband in 1969. However, when her husband died suddenly in 1997, Neyhard took a break from milking, sold the herd, and kept the heifers. Within the next year, she hopes to be back up to the herd's original size of 20 cows. Her son renamed the farm Star-Tover in 1998 to signify that they were "starting over" in farming.

Clean, fresh, quality drinking water on your farm could make a bigger difference than you think.

80 head of milk cows and 45 replacements roam on this 137-acre farm owned by William and Lori Arnold of Somerset. Called Dormel Farms, the property has been in the family since 1963 when William's father purchased the farm. William and Lori took over ownership in 1986. Six years ago William converted his operation to a seasonal grazing herd. In addition to the 137 acres, the Arnolds rent 270 acres, which are in hay. The Arnolds are proud of their dairy herd, which often obtains the highest quality premiums for low somatic cell counts from their cooperative.

Ronald & Marcine Carpenetti

Peaceful Acres Dairy in Nicholson is owned by Ronald and Marcine Carpenetti. The 207-acre farm has been in the family for 55 years. Ronald and Marcine took over ownership 32 years ago. Today they milk 50 cows with 35 replacement heifers. One thing unique about the Carpenetti's farm is that Ronald was born in the farmhouse on the farm. The farm has received a lot of publicity lately due to the construction of a greenhouse barn. The first of its kind in the area, the greenhouse barn is used to house dry cows and heifers. Although they do have some new barns, all of the original barns and out buildings still remain on the farm, giving it historic appeal.

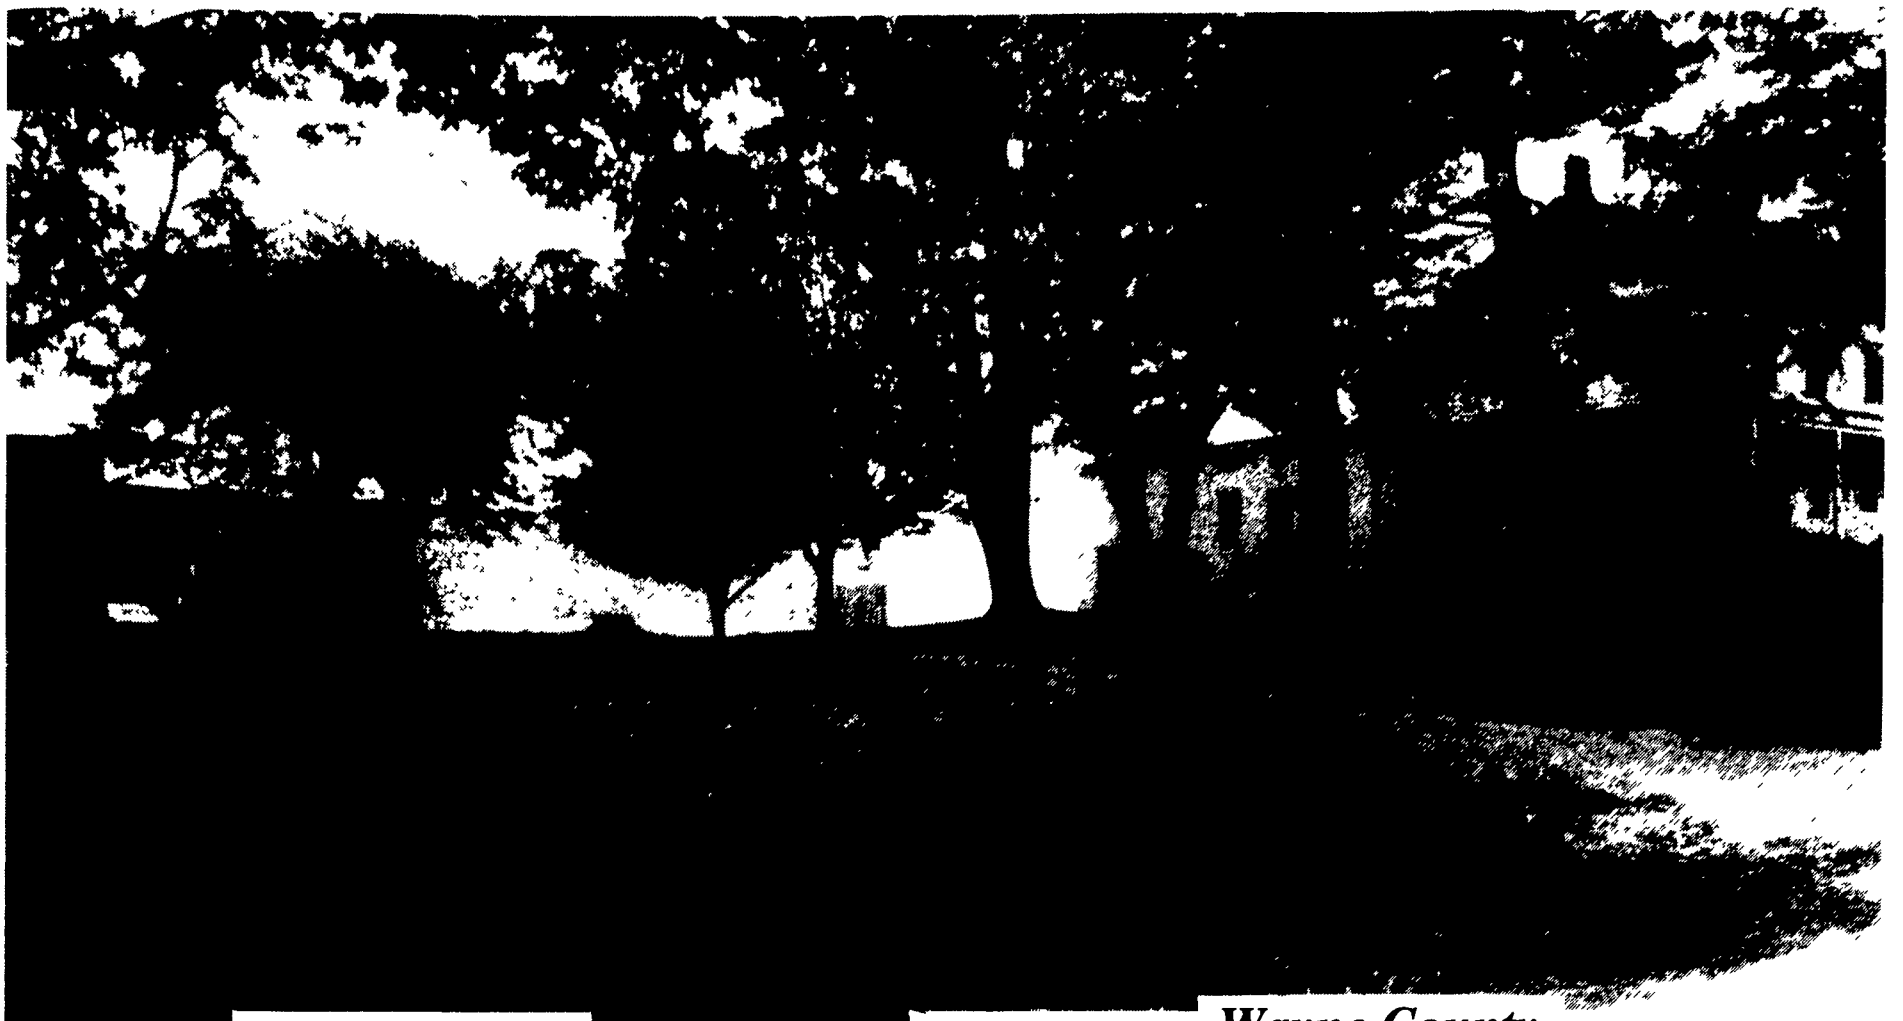
Congratulations To The 2000 Dairy Of Distinction Winners



Dairy of Distinction

Wayne County

Highland Farm

Highland Farm in Honesdale is home to the Bryant family. William and Debra Bryant milk 74 cows and have about 55 heifers on the 240-acre farm, which has been in the family since 1841. The farm was the setting of their oldest daughter Carrie's wedding last fall. In addition to the home farm, the Bryants rent about 120 tillable acres. They raise corn and hay for their herd. William and Debra, along with their four children, Carrie, Zachary, Emily, and Michael, have worked hard over the years to keep the buildings looking good and to breed a high quality milking herd.

Dairy of Distinction

Wyoming County

Robert Day Sr. and Son

Robert and Eloise Day, along with their son Loren, who is in partnership with his father, milk 54 cows and have 25 heifers on this 187-acre operation. They also rent two additional farms, where they farm about 60 acres. The rented farms are surrounded by houses scattered here and there, so the Days farm the areas that are left over. They do graze their herd in the evenings and have mostly Holsteins with a few crossbreeds. The Days are proud of the farm and are glad to be carrying on a family tradition.

Calculating The Costs Of Raising Replacements For Your Dairy

Peter Tozer
Assistant Professor
Dairy and Animal Science
Penn State

Calculating an accurate cost of raising a replacement heifer is probably one of the most difficult tasks for dairy farmers. Heifers do not generate income and some of the expense of raising them is hidden in the costs of the milking herd as, in most cases, the heifers are fed refusals from the milking herd or feed that comes from the same source as the dairy herd's ration Knowing the true cost of raising heifers would allow a dairy farmer to determine whether the resources available could be better utilized. For example, the dairy farmer could contract out heifers and replace them with more milking cows if the costs of rearing them on-farm are much higher than having them raised off-farm.

Research has shown that the average daily cost of rearing heifers in Pennsylvania is $1.53, however, the range is from $1.21 to $1.77. The reason for the wide range is the different combinations of labor, facilities, feed and numerous other factors that go into raising replacements.

The costs to raise heifers are labor, feed, facilities and machinery, interest, mortality, bedding, health, and reproduction. Several of these costs are relatively easy to measure; these costs are bedding, health, and reproduction. The remaining costs are a little more difficult to estimate. To estimate the true costs of feed for heifers a value needs to be placed on all feed, including refusals from the dairy herd. The value of farm-grown feed is the market value of the forage and the refusals can be valued at either market or replacement value.

The time a facility or machine is used by the heifer enterprise and the value of the item determine facilities and machinery costs Costs for machinery and facilities should also include a proportion of the repairs and maintenance costs based on the allocation of time to the heifer enterprise. The value of the capital items used by the heifer activity should be the depreciated value rather than the cost value.

Interest costs capture the opportunity cost of having a heifer on the farm; the cost also includes the interest cost of variable inputs, such as feed. Opportunity costs are the costs the producer incurs when a decision is made. For example, the dairy farmer could sell the heifer and invest the money in the bank at the current interest rate and gain income from this investment; the income foregone is the opportunity cost.

The mortality cost measures the costs incurred due to the death of heifers as they progress through the heifer herd. Included is the cost to raise a heifer to a particular age, the value of the heifer in different age classes and the mortality rate of heifers in each age class.

The final cost, labor, is calculated in a similar way to the facilities and machinery cost. The most important aspect to consider here is that all labor tasks are included. In the same research mentioned earlier, producers reported time spent on feeding, bedding and cleaning out heifer facilities, but did not include time spent on such tasks as breeding, health checks and vaccinations, and record keeping. By not measuring and reporting these jobs a dairy farmer or heifer grower is underestimating the time spent rearing heifers, which in turn leads to an underestimation of the cost of rearing heifers.

Measuring all these costs accurately leads to a cost that is closer to the true value of rearing a heifer and allows a dairy producer or heifer grower to determine a better use of the resources available to them. Better utilization of resources then leads to potentially higher income and higher profitability of the dairy enterprise.

A computer-based spreadsheet developed at Penn State is available that calculates the costs of raising heifers. The spreadsheet and accompanying instruction manual can be downloaded from the Department of Dairy and Animal Science's web-site, the address is http://www.das.psu.edu/teamdairy/special/. If you don't have access to the web, disk copies of the program and manual can be obtained by calling Peter Tozer at (814) 863-3917.
